reflections on the state and civil Uliberties in Europe Thoirdatewatete

Austerity, democracy and civil liberties vol 23 no 1 | March 2013

welfare policy Chris Jones, page 3 Discipline and discontent: coalition government extends "slave labour"

Kick 'em all out? Anti-politics and post-democracy in the European Union

Leigh Phillips, page 9

Peio M. Aierbe, page 20 Austerity policies also cut rights and liberties in Spain surveillance state? Yasha Maccanico, page 22 Using the Italian crisis to impose control: a shift towards a fiscal and resistance Mick Moss, page 28 Sollective punishment and pre-emptive policing in times of riot

Golden Dawn and the deafening silence of Europe Jerome Roos, page 26

Belgian 'municipal fines' cause growing dissent Kees Hudig, page 30

lpinoviba • •

samit ant to angi?

gen Hayes

transactions and IDs for infants. Mowhere is the "shock doctrine" more evident today than in the powers that EU institutions have exercised and accrued in the name of dealing with and preventing future crises. This volume of the Journal includes a lengthy essay on "anti-polities" and "post-democracy" by Leigh Phillips which suggests that the EU, already suffering from a long-standing crisis of egitimacy, continues to move further away from the liberal democratic ideals upon which it was ostensibly founded. He argues that contrary to claims about "emergency" powers and exceptional" measures, the crisis is consolidating the "ruleby-expert" mentality that already dominates many EU and by-expert" mentality that already dominates many EU and mational institutions of government. Left unchecked, Phillips warns, "post-democracy" will become "the mechanism through which the unravelling of the post-war compromise government's measures to combat tax-evasion include compulsory bank accounts, financial surveillance and profiling against the "redditometro" (income-meter), limits on cash example in Italy [see Yasha Maccanico] where the "technical"

Leigh Phillips argues that the widening democratic deficit is undermining public confidence in governments and institutions of state alike – a gap that is being filled by "anti-politics": a "cynical rejection of the entire political class as inevitably venal and out to swindle the public". This breakdown of confidence in authority creates space for populist movements of all stripes. The emergence of organisations like the neo-Nazi well as in the corridors of power – is made all the more frightening by the "deafening silence of Europe" [see Jerome Roos]. This collection only scratches the surface of the nexus betwing by the "deafening silence of Europe" [see Jerome Roos]. This collection only scratches the surface of the nexus between austerity and civil liberties. It might also have discussed the positives emerging from the crisis: across Europe cussed the positives emerging from the crisis: across Europe snew generation has been radicalised and is organism in a new generation has been radicalised and is organism in a new generation has been radicalised and is organism in a new generation has been radicalised and is organism in a new generation has been radicalised and is organism in a new generation has been radicalised and is organism in eralism, the "War on Terror" and post-democratic forces. in which it operates has been circumscribed by neo-libhuman rights and accountability – but the political space EU was born of the same political traditions – cooperation, atives to emerge from the ashes of the financial sector. The investigative journalism is among the relatively radical initisector premised on freedom of information, expression and responsible for the crisis and sent to Jail. A vibrant multimedia savers and the welfare system). Powerful people were held banks gave way to letting them go (while protecting domestic crisis and the only European country where propping up the also have looked to Iceland, the first state ravaged by the litical Left and the pragmatism of "civil society". We might ways which challenge the failures of the mainstream poa new generation has been radicalised and is organising in cussed the positives emerging from the crisis: across Europe tween austerity and civil liberties. It might also have dis-This collection only scratches the surface of the nexus be-> supposed "social contract" [see in particular Chris Jones, of liberal democratic assumptions about the state and the ly outsourced to the private sector) that often fly in the face extraordinary levels of surveillance and coercion (increasingof austerity is not simply an economic sanction: it requires late. The articles in this collection show how the imposition the bailouts and economic contraction continue to accumu-Their ranks are growing by the day as the devastating costs of are being hit hardest by austerity [see Peio Aierbe on Spain]. Across Europe, the working class and the disenfranchised grammes already underway will be with us for years to come. that the worst is over. Regardless, the impact of austerity proouts in the Eurozone and only the foolhardy dare suggest stricken financial sector. Few would bet against further bailcrippling austerity in return for EU-IMF life support for its conceived, Cyprus has become the latest country to accept European economies. In the time since this collection was the banking sector five-and-a-half years ago has devastated liberties and democracy. The financial crisis that began in Journals should focus on the nexus between austerity, civil It seems appropriate that the first of our newly thematic States have dealt harshly with the increasing numbers who challenge their authority on the streets [see Nick Moss]. As Laurie Penny pointed out recently, those who ask why there has not been greater resistance to austerity measures overlook the fact that many people are scared to participate in protests for fear of arrest, serious charges and permanent police records. Formidable state responses to demonstrations, strikes, occupations, protests, direct actions and riots are steeped in the narrative and imagery of counter-subversions. Fear is used to help coerce the wider population into accepting the cuts [see Peio Aierbel]. Long prison sentences are handed down to those whose violence or activism must be made an example of [see Nick Moss], while the people be made an example of [see Nick Moss], unpunished.

Peio Aierbe, Yasha Maccanico and Kees Hudig].

"Shock doctrine" is rightly used to describe the imposition of neo-liberal austerity policies on states that effectively cede control of their economy to the IMF et al. But the coercive elements of the state are also using the crisis to impose or justify exceptional measures in the name of justice or security. For Statewatch is a non-profit-making voluntary group founded in 1991. It is comprised of lawyers, academics, journalists, researchers and community activists. Its European network of contributors is drawn from 18 countries. Statewatch encourages the publication of investigative journalism and critical research in Europe the fields of the state, justice and home affairs, civil liberties, accountability and openness.

One of Statewatch's primary purposes is to provide a service for civil society to encourage informed discussion and debate - through the provision of news, features and analyses backed up by full-text documentation so that people can access for themselves primary sources and come to their own conclusions. www.statewatch.org/about.htm providers." individual's behaviour and control of the unemployed to private lives. State power subcontracts regulation of an unemployed the individual, with the state interfering directly in people's Programme – and workfare policies more generally – "police Boycott Workfare told Statewatch. They argue that the Work individuals...than the Work Programme," the campaign group no better instance of state power encroaching on the rights of the country. "In terms of UK government policy, there is perhaps These policies have led to fierce and effective opposition across ganisation, providing that the majority of the role is dedicated definition includes "working towards the profit of the host orwork should be of "community benefit" - of which one official The regulations that cover the MWA scheme outline that such carrying out specific tasks and working under supervision." [2] full-time employment such as attending on time and regularly, recipient develop the labour-market discipline associated with ment describes Mandatory Work Activity (MWA) as "helping the the bill. One Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) docu-The company or charity receives the labour and the state foots Allowance for four weeks' unpaid work for up to 30 hours a week. ties can take on unemployed people in receipt of Jobseekers' schemes that are in place - contracted companies and chari-Under the Mandatory Work Activity programme – one of several protests for their involvement in these "workfare" schemes. and Primark, as well as numerous charities, have faced frequent stopped for up to three years. Companies such as Tesco, Asda, ment benefits. In the most extreme cases, payments can be work, enforced through the threat of the removal of unemploy-Most controversially, people can be obliged to undertake unpaid "actively seeking employment." in the afternoon, which would not seem to leave much time for up the individual's day from 9:30 in the morning until 16:30 that from Monday to Friday, Mandatory Work Activity will take Work Activity." [4] The same letter contains a timetable, showing Jobcentre and actively seek employment whilst on Mandatory "you must continue to attend your Job Search Reviews at the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals makes the following demand: faced with Mandatory Work Activity at the Royal Society for the enough. A letter sent by the firm Pinnacle People to someone losing their income. Undertaking unpaid work, however, is not who does the work is obliged to do so or face sanctions – that is, towards the delivery of benefit to the community." [3] The person programme' have also been forced to work for free." [5] refuses to say how many of the 850,000 people sent on the work The total figure is likely to be far higher, but "the government 250,000 people to work without pay over the next three years." scheme (the "work experience scheme") "is expected to put expected to provide 70,000 placements a year, while a similar nificant effect on the amount of paid work available." MWA is to workfare in the last year "has escalated" and "has had a sig-A recent estimate suggests that the number of people subjected

Slave labour?

"slave labour" welfare policy coalition government extends Discipline and discontent:

Chris Jones

eligible for referral. Credit welfare plan will see thousands of individuals become ingly targeted for enrolment and the government's Universal involved in the scheme. Disabled people have been increasgovernment is determined to bolster the number of people ment" and are given access to sensitive personal data. The manage the programme "without prescription from govern-Primark or face losing their benefit payments. These companies must work for free for private companies such as Tesco and Under the government's Work Programme, unemployed people individuals involved. contracts. These firms exercise considerable power over the waged work – are prescribed by private firms with government not comply. The activities - which in many cases include unthe severity of sanctions that can be imposed should people activities required of those claiming benefits. It also increased the Work Programme which raised the number and intensity of formation in May 2010, the coalition government introduced imum number of job applications every week. Following its undertaking of certain activities – for example, filling in a minthe receipt of unemployment benefits is conditional upon the introduced "work-for-your-benefit" policies through which Since the late 1990s, successive governments in the UK have provider or one of their partners: Jobcentre Plus, a letter is sent to the claimant. It states that the Upon referral to the Work Programme by a member of staff at a getting and keeping a job. action plan of things you'll do to improve your chances of qiscnss what help you need to find work, and draw up an "Will support you whilst on the Work Programme. They will Work Programme until you are told otherwise." [1] of their partners, tells you to...You must take part in the You must complete any activities that [the provider], or one years in extreme cases. weeks, although loss of benefit entitlement can last for up to three error – can mean losing benefit payments, initially for up to 26 Refusing to take part – and in numerous cases, administrative conditionality and will be backed up by tougher sanctions to ensure claimants meet their responsibilities." [14]

A significant degree of power has also been outsourced to employees of private companies. Exactly what "can reasonably be expected" of those who find themselves referred to the Work Programme is not decided by the government. The programme is contracted out to companies such as Working Links, Serco and GAS, each of whom has signed multi-million pound contracts with the government. Referred to as "prime providers" or "primes", they are supposed to "identify the most effective way of helping people into sustained work." These firms "have been given new freedom to do so without prescription from government," with centrally-ordained standards "minimised as far as possible, allowing them to innovate and focus their resources where it will do most good." [16]

Mind control?

It is this freedom of operation that has seen contracts that permit the provision of free labour to companies such as Tesco and Primark. The prime providers also run courses and training sessions for the unemployed – with attendance often ensured by the threat of sanction. Individuals referred from a Job Centre to programmes run by A4e have found themselves placed into sessions during which neuro-linguistic programming (NLP) techniques are used "to try to instil a go-getting mentality in jobseekers." NLP is embraced by some who say that "it builds confidence and helps people to achieve their goals through language, physical movements and thought patterns," according to an article in the Financial Times (FT).

However, it is not approved by the national health advisory body, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence, and "academics have attacked NLP as pseudoscience." One of A4e's "customers", quoted in the FT, described it as "psychobabble: people telling you 'believe anything and it can happen'...1 just resented being forced on pain of having our income removed to attend something that was stupendously stupid." [17]

A4e is not the only prime provider trying to "instil a go-getting mentality." Boycott Workfare also accuses the firm Reed of doing the same, albeit through providing its own Work Programme "customers" with books "encouraging people to develop '3G thinking'". According to a website run by the firm's chairman, Legal action last year sought to challenge these policies. Cait Reilly, an unemployed geology graduate, "was told she would lose her £53.45 weekly benefits unless she worked for two weeks unpaid in Poundland," [6] as part of the "sector based work activity scheme." Her case was taken up by Public Interest Lawyers, along with a similar complaint from a mechanic, Jamieson Wilson, who "under a scheme known as the Community Action Programme was required to work unpaid, cleaning furniture, for 30 hours per week for six months." [7] The legal action was partially successful – the DWP was found to have acted unlawfully by not following the procedure requiring them to inform Mr Wilson of the consequences of not participating in the scheme. The letters they posted – which were sent to thousands of people — "failed to comply with the basic notice requirements that would – "failed to comply with the basic notice requirements that would – "failed to comply with the basic notice requirements that would – "failed to comply with the basic notice requirements that would – "failed to comply with the basic notice requirements that would allow the DWP to lawfully impose benefit sanctions." [8]

However, the case also sought to argue that the government's schemes breached Article 4 of the European Convention on Human Rights, which prohibits slavery and forced labour. On this count, the legal challenge failed, with the judge ruling that "characterising such a scheme as involving or being analogous to 'slavery' or 'forced labour' seems to me to be a long way from contemporary thinking." [9] A recent appeal agreed with the view that the schemes could not be considered to be forced labour, although the three judges in the Court of Appeal also declared that the Jobseeker's Allowance (Employment, Skills and Enterprise) Regulations 2011 "are unlawful and must be and Enterprise) Regulations 2011 "are unlawful and must be quashed". This means that:

"All those people who have been sanctioned by having their jobseeker's allowance withdrawn for non-compliance with the Back to Work schemes will be entitled to reclaim their benefits. And until new regulations are enacted with proper parliamentary approval [the original regulations were not put through Parliament] nobody can be compelled to participate in the schemes." [10]

lain Duncan Smith, the Work and Pensions Secretary, said that the ruling was "utter madness" and that he had "'no intention' of paying compensation to any claimant who declined to join a scheme and had their benefits docked as a result." [11] The Daily Telegraph quoted a "senior government source" as saying that ministers "want to increase the use of mandatory activity and sanctions for the unemployed as the schemes work." [12] and sanctions for the unemployed as the schemes work." [12]

Freedom — for "prime providers"

Compulsion is central to workfare schemes. It is this which separates them from "traditional, rights-and-eligibilities-based welfare systems," says the academic Jamie Peck. "The essence of workfarism involves the imposition of a range of compulsory programs and mandatory requirements for welfare recipients with a view to enforcing work while residualising welfare," he argues (emphasis in original). [13] The government has also been clear on the element of compulsion within the programme:

"We expect claimants to do everything that can reasonably be expected of them to find work or prepare for work in the future as a condition of receiving support. This is known as the Jobcentre: Work Programme, with a complaint about his experience with submitted evidence to a House of Commons enquiry into the found it difficult to have their rights respected. Ross Bradford Even then, some people subjected to the Work Programme have mation requests, and appeals against subsequent responses. - it required the submission of a number of freedom of infortraining provider." Establishing this fact was not straightforward

I didn't do what they asked." Information request. They told me I would be sanctioned if I didn't have to do this – as confirmed by a Freedom of search and give the provider a copy of the form. I told them "At one appointment, I was told to record details of my job vider, to whom the Jobcentre passed him on: He makes similar accusations about his time with Triage, a pro-

in order to get me to sign an optional consent form." [22] mandatory' on the top of my form, effectively lying to me right to demand I do so, one of the staff members wrote third parties was entirely optional. When I queried their them extra personal information or permission to contact The provider's own forms didn't make me aware that giving "They simply handed me a bunch of forms to fill in and sign.

Centre for Economic and Social Inclusion. [23] £13,000 depending on the 'customer group'," according to the around eighteen months to two years) varies from £4,000 to over for supporting someone into work (and keeping them there for employment: "The maximum amount that providers can earn but the financial rewards increase significantly for finding them money when an individual is referred to them by a Jobcentre, work on a "payment by results" system. Providers receive some activities of people referred to them. Work Programme contracts This information can be used by providers to check up on the certain types of benefits due to a low income. expand this system to people who are in paid work, but receive remains in work." Policies due to come into effect this year will years, as their payments depend on the length of time a 'client' their private provider will still ring them weekly for up to two someone manages to find employment on the Work Programme, escape the Work Programme," say Boycott Workfare. "Even if by the provider: "Even when employed, the individual cannot But finding out if someone is still in work means monitoring a Jobcentre Plus adviser as reasonable in terms of improving sanction if they do not sign up when "registration is deemed by vice is not quite mandatory – but individuals can be subject to nature of signing up to the new service." [25] Use of the serbe putting pressure on advisors to misrepresent the mandatory from members concerned that some local managers appear to announced in December that it "is receiving reports and queries users." [24] The Public and Commercial Services Union also "they were able to harvest passport details and passwords from flaws" in the system late last year, with hackers revealing that personal details." Channel 4 News "exposed serious security ment has been used by "bogus employers" to "harvest people's Meanwhile, a new online job search system run by the govern-> encourages his readers to "master your mindset." [18] James Reed, this stands for "global", "good" and "grit." Reed > es in a written submission to a House of Commons enquiry: second year on the Work Programme, criticised these approach-Ms M. J. Canning, who is long-term unemployed and into her with my thought processes." [19] the long-term unemployed, and has nothing whatever to do of my age and the fact that few employers will even consider when it's obvious my inability to get a job is merely because "We'll change the way you think' I was patronisingly told, to address an individual's mindset form part of a political strategy: Boycott Workfare suggested to Statewatch that courses that seek unfortunate enough to be out of work." the economic crisis such as the banking system... to those also shifts blame away from the institutions which caused political failings of the state and political status quo. So this er is basically used in order to cover up the ideological and "By blaming and scapegoating the unemployed, state pow-

Invasions of privacy

provider will be kept updated if their circumstances change. vidual to the Jobcentre, on which the relevant Work Programme also contains an extensive list of information supplied by the indiqualifications amongst other things. The response from the DWP - aims, Job preferences, employment history, and educational ises", and items taken from the "Action Plan" of the "customer" been recorded relating to the customer on Jobcentre Plus premand past benefit claims, indications of "whether an incident has cludes name, address, telephone number, information on current in fact given significant amounts of personal data. [20] This indetails" to a provider, private firms and their sub-contractors are Programme saying that the Jobcentre has "passed your contact informing an individual that they have been referred to the Work submitted to the DWP in 2011 revealed that, despite the letter keep an eye on what people do. Freedom of information requests Programme providers (whether "prime" or subcontracted") to of measures allow employees of both Jobcentres and Work courage individuals to change the way they think, but a number Neuro-linguistic programming and '3G thinking' might not en-www.consent.me.uk, this means that: ered by the DWP as data processors. According to the website All Work Programme providers and sub-contractors are considturther consent." [2]] for delivery of the Work Programme, without the need for is also shared with all providers and their sub-contractors Personal information you share with the DWP Jobcentre DWP Jobcentre, without the need for further consent. "They share any personal information you give them with mation being shared with any third party, such as an employer or can "withhold or withdraw consent to stop your personal inforjobcentres and providers, this is not mandatory, and individuals is a presumption in favour of sharing personal data between The website was set up to inform people that although there

House of Commons in March. Welfare Cash Card Bill is due to have its second reading in the but not themselves," reports The Guardian. [30] Shelbrooke's (particularly younger people) having their benefits monitored, ishes. "Participants tended to support the idea of other people group" discussions, support for state control of spending dimin-

The impact on disabled people to work." [31] tinuing to provide appropriate support for those who are unable "support long-term benefit claimants back into work, whilst conreassessment." The government says its aim in doing so is to 2008, and by April 2011 the government moved "to full national of the assessments for those who claimed ESA prior to October a trial began in Aberdeen and Burnley that saw the introduction to see whether they were capable of working. In October 2010, (ESA) were subjected to a "Work Capability Assessment" (WCA) security payment called Employment and Support Allowance October 2008, unemployed disabled people in receipt of social introduced by the previous New Labour government. Starting in who can be referred to it, through the acceleration of policies has seen it introduce policies that increase the number of people The coalition government's enthusiasm for the Work Programme fit for work by the firm." During a House of Commons debate: told stories of constituents who had died shortly after being ruled the firm was subjected to "sustained criticism from MPs as they behalf of the DWP, and have been strongly criticised. In January, The assessments are carried out by the firm Atos Healthcare on such decisions." [32] who had killed themselves or become suicidal following Some of them later died, they said, and MPs told of others had been incorrectly assessed and told to return to work. "MPs gave emotional accounts of how very sick individuals another." [33] being "found fit to work predicating a move from one benefit to set himself alight outside a Job Centre in Birmingham after centre] to see if she was able to move herself." Last June, a man [was] left in the middle of the car park [at an Atos reassessment stories. Burnip related a case in which "a deaf-blind woman who have had to undergo a WCA, DPAC has come across similar have found their offices phones "clogged with crying people" system," said Linda Burnip from the group. Just like MPs who and death through the Work Capability Assessment tick box firm Atos are being allowed to drive disabled people to suicide campaigning, one of which is "the way in which the private of government policies and practices against which they are Disabled People Against Cuts (DPAC), has "a very lengthy list" sponse, so has the more widespread introduction of WCAs. Jobseekers' Allowance led to campaigning and protest in re-Just as the intensification of workfare for those in receipt of local Job Centre to one of the prime providers. [34] The way the - are placed onto the Work Programme, and so referred by their less than 15 points on the firms' "biopsychosocial" assessments Those assessed as "fully fit to work" after a WCA – by scoring > it is not observed. [26] of a Jobseeker's Direction" – a notice which leads to sanction if the adviser will be able to require registration through the issue employment prospects." If "the claimant will not do so willingly, > control of their finances and get back on their feet." advancing personal freedom, allowing benefit recipients to "take only essential purchases." This was presented by Shelbrooke as prohibited...taxpayer-funded benefits should be used to fund as cigarettes, alcohol, Sky television and gambling would be energy, travel and housing. The purchase of luxury goods such be able to make "only priority purchases such as food, clothing, account. This would mean that those in receipt of benefits would efit payments would go to a pre-paid card, rather than into a bank see the introduction of "welfare cash cards", through which ben-Conservative MP Alec Shelbrooke proposed legislation that would give the state control over what people can buy. In late December currently before the House of Commons that, if passed, would more intrusive schemes to be implemented – with proposals There have been calls from politicians and think tanks for even > the impact of the card found that, amongst other things: only," and provides £5 per person per day. Research in 2010 into Morrisons." It is intended "to cover food and essential toiletries ers including Tesco, Asda, Sainsbury's, Boots, Peacocks and accepted at a small number of Home Office designated retailcards for those in receipt of section 4 support, which are "only [27] In 2009, the previous government introduced payment stems from section 4 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999). support" from the government, known as section 4 support (it as soon as possible," but they "may be able to receive short-term "must make arrangements to return to [their] country of origin refused asylum-seekers. Those whose asylum claim has failed Such a scheme in fact already exists for one section of society:

- People are unable to buy enough or appropriate food to
- People are unable to buy essential non-food items for feed themselves and their children;

themselves and their children;

- including legal advice and medical care; • Users are unable to travel to access essential services,
- contributes to the stigmatisation of asylum seekers; • It causes anxiety and distress amongst users and
- food due to technical and administrative failings. [28] People have been left without the funds they need to buy supported some form of state control over benefits," but in "focus state control." A poll by Demos found that "59% of the public empowering for service users – there is much more to it than state." The report's author has said that "this technology can be skills, as well as delivering huge administrative savings for the card could "help recipients control debt and build up budgeting tank Demos released a report in late January arguing that a introduction of a similar system for benefit claimants. The think but this does not appear to have diminished enthusiasm for the on children and young people confirmed these findings, [29] A recent parliamentary inquiry into the effect of section 4 support some control." control over their lives it's a really good way for them to have media. For disabled people in particular who often have little taking part and others who read about it [or] see it on social meeting their responsibilities." [41] to strengthen the link between people receiving benefits and tant changes to the existing conditionality and sanctions regime called Universal Credit, will see the government make "imporbenefits are paid, through the introduction of a new system new swathes of the population. Reforms to the way in which workfare and sanctions are soon to become applicable to whole against the organisations involved." [40] This may be because the names were made public due to the likelihood of protests government's mandatory work programme would "collapse" if with The Guardian reporting that "the DWP has said that the publish the names of companies and charities using workfare, and expand its reach. Late last year the government refused to from the Work Programme – the government is preparing to try of successes in getting companies and charities to withdraw merous other groups and individuals – which has had a number Boycott Workfare, Disabled People Against the Cuts and nu-Despite the movement against new welfare policies led by

Extending control with "tougher sanctions"

2013.[43] the country from early April until national "roll-out" in October tives." [42] It will be tested in a limited number of places across options as it "offers the greatest scope to improve work incenthe new system. Universal Credit was chosen from a number of by Capita, the firm that received the contract for implementing work than on benefits," he told a conference in January hosted people who go back to work by ensuring they are better off in and Under Secretary of State for Welfare Reform. "It will reward making work pay," according to Lord Freud, a Conservative peer plifying] the benefit system and [tackling] welfare dependency by Credit and Working Tax Credit," with the ostensible aim of "[sim-Employment and Support Allowance, Housing Benefit, Child Tax Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, income-related "Universal Credit will be an integrated benefit in place of income under the new system: programme." There will be "four broad conditionality groups" also have their employment monitored, and policed, via the work work [and in receipt of some form of income-related benefit] will the first time ever those in work, be it part time or self-employed Boycott Workfare told Statewatch that when it is brought in, "for more people become eligible for referral to the Work Programme. The introduction of Universal Credit will also see thousands

Full conditionality – jobseekers;

- capability for work at the current time; with a health condition which means they have limited Work preparation – people with a disability or those
- age five; and lead carer in a couple with a child over age one but below • Keeping in touch with the labour market – lone parent or

Jobs," while in training sessions staff referred to unemployed "spend as little time and effort as possible on helping them find providers, accused by a former employee of telling its staff to early this year saw Triage, a firm sub-contracted by two prime only 1 in 5 of the total job outcomes." [35] A case that emerged all referrals onto the programme, disabled people account for quotes government statistics: "in spite of making up a third of are being placed onto inappropriate programmes." The charity the ongoing failures of the ADW ahl to sailures and issues on other disability-specific employment schemes...and the least support," a problem "compounded by performance group of disabled people who are furthest from a job are receiving disabled charity Scope has expressed "serious concerns that the those they consider to hold less chance of obtaining work. The which the provider is paid by the government), whilst fobbing off - that is, seeking employment for those most ready for work (for cusations have been levelled at firms for "creaming and parking" their resources where it will do most good," yet a number of acprogramme is designed allows providers to "innovate and focus the end of last year an amendment to the regulations means that: initially meant having to attend "work-focused interviews", but at "placed in the Work Related Activity Group (WRAG)." [37] This being able to prepare for a return to work," and are subsequently sessed as having limited capability for work at present but as Recipients of ESA who score 15 points in their WCA "are as-disabled people as "lying, thieving bastards." [36]

capability for work." work such as lack of work experience due to their limited market. It will help these participants to address barriers to help ESA WRAG participants move closer to the labour work placements as another measure through which to "Work Programme providers will be able to use mandatory from the chest down." [39] strokes, those with mental health issues and people paralysed terminal cancer with more than six months to live, victims of activity group have recently included people diagnosed with DWP. As noted in a Guardian report: "Those in the work-related disabled people, many people are likely to disagree with the the effects that being assessed as "fit to work" has had on some being of individuals and their families," [38] although given that long term absence from work is bad for the health and well-The DWP says these changes were made "in line with the view into the streets, direct action "is massively empowering to those She notes that as well as making the issue visible by bringing it obligation to use non-violent direct action to get rid of them." who are immoral and corrupt then as a citizen you have a moral Circus – with Burnip arguing that "if you have a government blockading of roads in central London – for example at Oxford people's access and other issues." Protests have included the ment in so far as we've tried to raise awareness of disabled which "is different from any previous disabled people's movehas been through "a grass roots movement," says Linda Burnip, ernment policies and, as with protests against workfare, this DPAC has regularly held protests against WCAs and other gov-

One in 10 people referred to the programme have been subjected to sanction and lost their benefit payments, but "as few as one in 20 finds a permanent job." The total number of people sanctioned since the scheme began "is likely to be more than 150,000." Despite the fact that the number of people seeking jobs far exceeds the number of jobs available, the employment minister Mark Hoban responded to these figures by saying that:

"Sadly some people are clearly very determined to avoid having to get a job at all and are failing to play by the rules. Through the Work Programme we are offering the hardest-to-help claimants extensive support in order for them to take control of their own lives and return to work." [45]

But many people do not see this "support" in such a positive light. Boycott Workfare summarise the programme in two short sentences: "The crime is unemployment. The sentence is workfare." Examined more critically, many elements of the Work Programme begin to look more like authoritarianism than assistance. As commentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator Wail Qasim argued following the first reading of Alec mentator was a first reading of Alec mentator was a first reading of Alec such Cards Bill in the House of Commons:

"The entire lives of those who seek state help come to revolve around ensuring that the minimal benefits they receive actually do arrive in their account...Discipline comes to dominate our lives whether we are employed or not and whether it is from employer or state." [46]

 $\label{eq:conditionality} \begin{tabular}{l} $\{14\}$ Conditionality, sanctions and hardship - Equality impact assessments/IMD11-041D.pdf assessments/IMD11-041D.pdf \\ \end{tabular}$

[15] John Domokos, Government admits Jobcentres set targets to take away benefits, The Guardian, 8 April 2011, http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/2011/apr/08/jobcentres-benefits-sanctions-targets
[16] DWP, The Work Programme, p.3 http://www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/the-work-programme.pdf [17] Sarah O'Connor, Agencies aim to improve focus of jobless, Financial Times, 25 June 2012

/moɔ.fəsbnimg&.www/\;qffd [81]

[19] House of Commons Work and Pensions Committee, The Work Programme: experience of different user groups, Written evidence, 14 December 2012, http://www.parliament.uk/documents/Collated.pdf

[20] DWP Central Freedom of Information Team response letter, 3 October 2011, http://www.whatdotheyknow.com/request/85299/ response/214884/attach/2/Fol%202636%2003.10.11.pdf

[21] consent.me.uk, Work Programme Privacy Invasion? Here's what they know about you, http://consent.me.uk/pages/privacyinvasion/

[22] Ibid. at [19]

[23] Centre for Economic & Social Inclusion, Work Programme, http://www.cesi.org.uk/keypolicy/work-programme

[24] Security holes remain in government jobseekers site, Channel 4. Channel 4. Com/news/security-holes-remain-in-government-jobseekers-site

[25] PCS, Universal Johmatch - Update for Members, 3 December 2012, http://www.pcs.org.uk/en/department_for_work_and_pensions_group/dwp-news.cfm/id/D34395B0-26B7-4E67-81B32F80CFEBB3E8

[26] Universal Jobmatch: the key questions, Channel 4 News, 10 December 2012 http://www.channel4.com/news/universal-jobmatch-the-key-questions

 $\label{localized} $$ \c\ \C2) \ \CKBA, \ \Cction 4 \ support, \ http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/asylum/support/apply/section 4.$

[28] Sile Reynolds, Your inflexible friend: The cost of living without cash, November 2010, http://www.refugeecouncil.org.uk/Resources/

 No conditionality – people with a disability or health condition which prevents them from working, carers, lone parents or lead carers with a child under the age of

for three years. Mandatory Work Activity, will see removal of benefit payments third failure to apply for a job, accept a job offer, or take part in of weeks afterwards. Under the "high" level of conditionality, a efit payments "until re-engagement", and then for a fixed period will make it possible for jobcentre staff to end an individual's benclaimants, through which even the "low" level of conditionality be introduced, giving jobcentre employees greater control over low a level." [44] A system of "personalised conditionality" will cause "currently, we believe that some sanctions are set at too to apply conditionality to greater numbers of recipients," besays a DWP document, "it will be possible to raise the threshold support, conditionality will no longer apply. But "in the future," once people earn enough money to disqualify them from state people lose entitlement to out-of-work benefits" – in other words, tionality will initially "be set at broadly the same point at which However, the thresholds at which people are subject to condi-

With the broader introduction of the workfare policies, protest and resistance seems likely to increase as well. The Work Programme is worth £5 billion, but so far it has failed to work.

Endnotes

- [1] Work Programme Start notification letter (JSA), http://www.cpag.org.uk/sites/default/files/WP05%20Published%207th%20June.pdf
- [2] DWP, Conditionality and sanctions, http://www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/universalcredit-chapter3.pdf
- [3] Jobseeket's Allowance (Mandatory Work Activity Scheme) Regulations 2011), p.12, paragraph 48, 'Community Benefit', http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/other/9780108510403.pdf
- [4] Letter from Pinnacle People, https://pbs.twimg.com/media/ BCbWdEICUAEEq-7.jpg:large
- [5] Warren Clark, Workfare: a policy on the brink', Red Pepper, Issue 188, February-March 2013
- [6] Kathy Sweeney, Cait Reilly: 'I don't think I'm above Poundland', The Guardian, 9 December 2012, http://www.guardian.co.uk/society/2012/dec/09/cait-reilly-interview-poundland-workfare
- [7] Public Interest Lawyers, Legal Challenge to "Back to work schemes", http://www.publicinterestlawyers.co.uk/news_details.php?id=263 [8] Public Interest Lawyers, Appeal hearing on Government's unlawful "Back - to Work" schemes, 19 December 2012, http://www.publicinterestlawyers.
- [9] [2012] EWHC 2292 (Admin), http://www.bailii.org/cgi-bin/markup.cgi?doc=/ew/cases/EWHC/Admin/2012/2292.html
- [10] Public Interest Lawyers, Court of Appeal Rules that the Government's "Back to Work" Regulations are Unlawful and Must Be Quashed, 12 February 2013 http://www.publicinterestlawyers.co.uk/news_details.php?id=298 [11] Jason Groves, Utter madness: Iain Duncan Smith condemns Poundland
- benefits utling that opens a $40 million floodgate, Davily Mail, 12 February 2013 http://www.davilymail.co.uk/news/article-2777426/lain-Duncan-Smith-condemns-Poundland-benefits-ruling-opens-40m-floodgate.html
- [12] Peter Dominiczak and Robert Winnett, Ministers extend back-to-work schemes despite court ruling that they are unlawful, The Telegraph, 12 February 2013 http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/politics/9866138/ Ministers-extend-back-to-work-schemes-despite-court-ruling-that-they-are-unlawful btml

[13] Jamie Peck, Workfare States, The Guildford Press, New York, 2001, p.10

[87] Ibid. at [19]

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/work-programme-memo-082.pdf [38] DWP, Work Programme Provider Live Running Memo, society/2012/sep/03/disabled-benefits-claimants-fines-work work plan, The Guardian, 3 September 2012, http://www.guardian.co.uk/ [39] Shiv Malik, Disabled benefits claimants face £71 a week fine for breaching politics/2012/nov/09/mandatory-work-activity-names-witheld employers, The Guardian, 9 November 2012, http://www.guardian.co.uk/ [40] Shiv Malik, Government blocks publication of names of 'workfare'

[4]] Ibid. at [2]

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/universal-credit-chapter2.pdf [42] DWP, Universal Credit: a new approach to welfare, dwp.gov.uk/newsroom/ministers-speeches/2013/28-01-13.shtml [43] Lord Freud, Universal Credit Capita speech, 28 January 2013, http://www.

The Telegraph, 25 November 2012, http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/ [45] Patrick Hennessy, Jobless stripped of benefits in Government scheme, co.uk/commentisfree/2012/dec/21/welfare-cash-cards-spying-website unemployment, The Guardian, 21 December 2012, http://www.guardian. [46] Wail Qasim, Welfare cash cards and spying: the Tory approach to politics/9700485/Jobless-stripped-of-benefits-in-Government-scheme.html

azurecard-v4.pdr Refugee%20Council/downloads/researchreports/ASP%20-%20

default/files/tcs/asylum\_support\_inquiry\_report\_final.pdf  $\label{localizero} \mbox{young people, January 2013, http://www.childrenssociety.org.uk/sites/}$ [29] Report of the Parliamentary inquiry into asylum support for children and [15] House of Commons Work and Pensions Committee, The role of incapacity politics/2013/jan/29/thinktank-recommends-benefit-cash-prepay-cards cards, The Guardian, 29 January 2013, http://www.guardian.co.uk/ [30] Patrick Butler, Thinktank recommends issuing benefit cash on 'prepay' cmselect/cmworpen/1015/1015.pdf July 2011, p.5, http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201012/  $\mathtt{I}:\mathsf{Report},$  together with formal minutes, oral and written evidence,  $\mathtt{I3}$ benefit reassessment in helping claimants back into employment, Volume stos-attack-emotional-commons-debate [32] http://www.guardian.co.uk/society/2013/jan/17/

co.uk/society/2012/jun/29/man-on-fire-birmingham-job-centre Birmingham jobcentre, The Guardian, 29 June 2012, http://www.guardian. [33] Shiv Malik and John Domokos, Man sets himself on fire outside February-March 2013 [34] Warren Clark, 'Workfare: a policy on the brink', Red Pepper, Issue 188,

[81] Ibid. at [19]

January 2013 [36] LTB label for disabled and jobless people 'offensive', BBC News, 28 theatre mocking the Berlin-led imposition of cuts and structural burnt a flag emblazoned with a Swastika as a piece of radical imitating conquering soldiers from a wartime newsreel. They treatise. A march, a protest, a strike is a performance, not an academic in the banners and slogans – or fancy dress – of demonstrators. stituted. In any case, one is not looking for analytical complexity and the less-than-democratic means by which this is being inorchestrated social destruction being wrought in the country visit was more than understandable given the profound Troikagas when citizens rejected this lockdown. The anger at Merkel's protests across much of the city, which became awash in tear-Thousands of police were enforcing a ban on all gatherings and ingratitude and fecklessness. EU-speak "solidarity") for their bailing out of Athens, and of Greek moment to reinforce the narrative of German generosity (or in international media, providing them with the perfect telegenic with scribbled black Hitler moustaches, was a gift to German and Nevertheless, the incident, along with the usual Merkel effigies applauded the ersatz Schutzstaffel [Stormtrooper] unit. immediately have been to the nearby protesters who raucously incident was very much an own-goal however cathartic it may protesters than they do with their own elites, the Nazi uniform German people that they have more in common with Greek rupt (Catholic/Orthodox) southerners, and to remind "ordinary" of industrious (Protestant [2]) northerners and work-shy, corfalse north-south narrative and overturn the racist stereotypes When one of the most urgent tasks at the moment is to break this Crisis. vocabulary to describe what has happened to Europe since the it illustrates how much of a loss we are at in terms of having a Beyond the profound offence the incident caused in Germany, > the European Union post-democracy in Anti-politics and Kick 'em all out?

> > ynioqwaiv

Leigh Phillips

"iQue se vayan todos!" ("Kick 'em all out!")

CKISIS Argentine political class during the country's 2001 economic A popular slogan on mobilisations against the entirety of the is too important to leave to the politicians." portant to leave to the generals. I'm beginning to think Europe "French statesman Georges Clemenceau said war was too im-

Dagblad (8 February 2013) European commissioner Meelie Kroes in Het Financieele protesters dressed in Nazi regalia rode through the streets German Chancellor Angela Merkel's visited Athens. Two Greek of austerity [1] and their subjects came in October 2012 when parliamentary - combat between the European superintendents sometimes ideological, sometimes street-fighting - but rarely One of the more cringeworthy moments of the last few years of is fundamental.

of (rather than just demand for) popular self-government. gressive road that transforms anti-politics into the construction germ of the overthrow of post-democracy if it embraces a proarrival of a strongman saviour. But anti-politics can also be the turn, or even wishes for an outright authoritarian turn with the cynical apathy that buttresses the neo-liberal post-democratic Depending on its particular flavour, anti-politics can exist as a non-democratic forces that will further exploit this flux. is that unless progressive forces get their act together it is the The good news is that this means that all is in play. The bad news

Post-democracy

government leaders.

geography. tional novel insight that can be applied well beyond the Blairite did not receive the recognition it deserved for its highly funcanalysing the late-New Labour conjuncture that unfortunately In 2004, British sociologist Colin Crouch authored a slim volume outside the normal democratic channels. all policies - at least within the economic realm - coordinated with regularity, but the possibility of change is excluded with we have collapsed into autocracies. Formally, elections proceed of democracy continues, but without substance. It is not that in the 2000s, and indeed throughout the West, the pageant Crouch's key illumination was his recognition that in the UK transformed into private, treaty-based negotiations between parliaments and placed in the hands of experts, and on the other ing is on the one hand being taken out of the hands of elected democracy survive within post-democracy," [3] decision-makargument is rather that while "virtually all the components of is dominated by elites ('Twas ever thus. What is new here?) The This is distinct from the traditional critique that bourgeois politics is steadily hollowed out. In brief: the pageant of democracy continues, but the substance

tween capital and labour will be completed. through which the unravelling of the post-war compromise bedemocratically, ultimately post-democracy is the mechanism historic post-war gains can be partially but not fully achieved litical dominance by capital – and because a reversal of the left's It is this hollowing out of democracy that permits still greater pooverwhelmingly represent business interests." [4] interaction between elected governments and elites that the electoral game, politics is really shaped in private by only to the signals given to them. Behind this spectacle of plays a passive, quiescent, even apathetic part, responding of issues selected by those teams. The mass of citizens techniques of persuasion, and considering a small range cle, managed by rival teams of professionals experts in the ments, public electoral debate is a tightly controlled specta-"While elections certainly exist and can change govern-metastasised from a customs union to a quasi-government with premiere exemplars of post-democracy in action, having steadily Long before the crisis struck, the EU was already one of the world's

> not a military dictatorship. reaucrats and diplomats within European institutions, the EU is away from democratically elected parliaments to unelected buproposed. For all of the shifts in fiscal-policy decision-making have increased since the crisis, a "Final Solution" has not been all the attacks on Roma and immigrants across the bloc that of Portugal, Spain, Ireland, Slovenia, Bulgaria, Latvia etc.) For There is no German military occupation of Greece or Italy (or It must be acknowledged that Merkel is plainly not a Nazi.

> the disco. tearfully calling their parents fascists for not letting them go to noeuvring is, they could say, an exaggeration akin to the teenager not North Korea or Belarus. The charge of anti-democratic maderisively at such arguments, saying that the bloc is manifestly its crisis response the EU's defenders and spokespersons laugh So when critics point out the extra-democratic turn of the EU in precisely what has happened. slightly different things – leaves us without a language to describe tatorship", "autocracy" and "totalitarianism" – which all mean derstanding of the terms "despotism", "authoritarianism", "dic-But the sloppy convergence in the media and in popular un-would respond that I don't disagree with you. It is insufficiently democratic anyway and we must go further," I To those who say: "Who cares about the liberal democratic ideal? this spectrum a good distance from the liberal democratic ideal. so we will find that the EU crisis-response lies somewhere on it is we chose the democratic forms we did, and that in doing cratic forms. I want to argue that it would be useful to revisit why tatorship there is a spectrum of democratic and less-than-demo-Between norms of liberal parliamentary democracy and Nazi dic-

in Tunisia or Egypt will tell you today. festly a great advance and should not be sneezed at, as anyone from monarchic autocracy to bourgeois democracy was mani-However, the eighteenth century revolutionary transformation ocratic norms that the reversal of the left's gains of the last 70 Additionally, it is precisely through this withering away of dem-subset of the former. The fight for European democracy is what not parallel to the fight against austerity. The latter is in fact a My point here is that the struggle for European democracy is realms that should be opened up to democratic decision-making. to economic equality - is a tale of the steady extension of the social justice struggles - from trade union rights to women's rights ask these other questions. A Grand Unifying Theory, if you will, of been in the past. It is in the struggle for democracy that we can ample) are suddenly up for debate in a way that they have rarely democracy should be extended (to the economic realm, for ex-In the struggle against despotism, questions about how far years is being achieved.

of "anti-politics" that is the obverse of post-democracy. couple of decades now in Europe and beyond - of a popular mood ocratic turn" has been the development - dating back at least a Simultaneous to what I will describe as the European "post-dem10 contestatory parliaments and placed in the hands of diplomats of policy areas have been taken out of the domain of public, the realm of war, peace-making, and espionage. Great swathes and civil servants.

without government. phabet soup of the construction of international governance International Whaling Commission, are all noodles in the al-UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and the the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, even the United Nations Security Council, the World Trade Organisation, EU, even if the EU is the ideal nonpareil of this model. The with treaty-making intergovernmentalism is not unique to the This replacement of national democratic legislative processes is to transform this globalisation process into a democratic one. built to tackle these - all on a post-democratic basis. Our task asteroid tracking. International governance structures are being child pornography, antibiotic resistance and even near-Earth change to managing the global economy to tackling internet Many policy areas require international governance, from climate that their vision was ultimately a democratic one. visionaries for their top-down approach, but there is no question democratic European Parliament. One can certainly fault these a governmental cabinet and first minister drawn from a fully with the steady development of a United States of Europe, with wrinkles of the EU framework would eventually be ironed out aries of the European project assumed that the sub-democratic were genuinely concerned about this. Some of the original visiontermed the bloc's "democratic deficit." It may well be that some have for decades given lip service to the problem of what they Europe's post-democratic turn was not pre-ordained. EU leaders also more malleable by capital. predictable (more capable of providing "legal certainty") but are much more efficient than a democracy and certainly are more and the democratic end-point was shelved. These structures are democracy – gradually came to be embraced as an end in itself ic halfway house between national democracy and international But the intergovernmentalist approach – the not-quite-democrat-it would indeed, pace Brecht, be simpler if the government disto another level. European power-brokers had announced that the European Constitution took post-democratic manipulation after initially rejecting it in 2001, but the quadruple "do-over" of Ireland had also been forced to vote twice on the Nice Treaty ed fearmongering campaign, Ireland voted in favour in 2009. that they were ultimately granted. With the help of a well-fundhours of the vote, Brussels was demanding a fresh vote, a wish rejected the tarted up Constitution-cum-Lisbon-Treaty. Within going by the name of the Lisbon Treaty. In 2008, Irish voters still identical version of the constitution returned in 2007, this time referendum voters in 2005. Despite this rejection, an almost of the European Constitution at the hands of French and Dutch would be abandoned was the EU elite response to the defeat emerged and all efforts at overcoming the democratic deficit The first clear signal that a post-democratic consensus had solved the people and elected another.

This power is nothing to sneeze at, but it is a crippled chamber not have the power to propose legislation and can only amend it. tions. Unlike any other parliament in the Western world, it does is the sole directly elected chamber of the three main EU institupreme legislative chamber of the EU.) The European Parliament formation of the bloc's presidents and prime ministers, the suup to first ministers – the European Council, which is the Council up for discussion (agriculture ministers, foreign ministers, etc., configurations of national ministers depending on the policy topic the European Council/Council of Ministers, representing different Commission (Europe's executive), and the legislative chamber of is shared between the unelected civil servants of the European of the European legislative process, suffice it to say that power the desire be there for it to do so). Without going into the details gal grounds to be found to extend its superintending realm should EU has restricted competences but in reality there are always lefar-reaching legislation covering most policy areas (in theory the Meetings of the Council of Ministers are largely held in secret ything on which it has not already sounded out with the Council. its approval. In reality, the Commission rarely if ever proposes an-Commission and the Council then decides whether it will give Commission independently, laws are first proposed by the ing body of the EU. While most regulations are decided by the the post-democratic nature of the EU. It is the primary law-mak-Understanding the nature of the Council is crucial to grasping compared to national counterparts.

"working groups" that examine legislative proposals. that supervise the Commission's implementation of laws and its own secretariat general and has begat some 250 committees are made all the more banal as a result). The Council maintains except for a handful of pre-selected televised sessions (which

15% is actually discussed and negotiated in the Council. in these working groups, another 15% is set in Coreper and just the throne. Around 70% of EU legislation is decided, in effect, This clatch of diplomats is the highly secretive power behind proposals are usually first performed by Coreper, for example. meetings and carry out its orders. Examinations of Commission meet multiple times a week to prepare the agendas of Council the EU from each of the member states) or their deputies - to of the permanent representations (essentially the embassies to national officials with the status of ambassadors - the heads of Permanent Representatives, or Coreper. This brings together This network of committees is in turn controlled by the Committee bolicy path. could never vote out, nor could they reject or overturn the current members are elected individually but a government the electorate general election. It would be like having a parliament to which nation), but which meets in secret and is never the subject of a individual members may be representative of their "district" (their What we have here is a senate-like legislative chamber whose making rather than legislating, a method that historically was lomats behind closed doors. In truth, this is a form of treaty but intergovernmental and takes place primarily between dip-The legislative decision-making apparatus is not parliamentary government."

him in for a dressing down. era house during the leaving do for Jean-Claude Trichet – called last October, reportedly in the backroom of the old Frankfurt opthem to security) – an unelected, self-selected octet established (GdF for short, as per the letters on their lapel badges identifying deeper austerity. On 2 November 2011, the "Frankfurt Group"

and deregulation they demanded. this man who was incapable of forcing through the level of cuts monetary affairs. They had decided that they had had enough of Council; and Olli Rehn, EU commissioner for economic and rency); Herman van Rompuy, the president of the European Eurogroup (comprised of the 17 states who use the single cur-José Manuel Barroso; Jean-Claude Juncker, chairman of the Sarkozy; newly installed ECB chief Mario Draghi; EC president German chancellor Angela Merkel; French president Nicolas The GdF at the time comprised IMF chief Christine Lagarde;

their own. Days later, they would do the same in Italy. government and suspended Greek democracy, installing one of a bailout against his will: they had for the first time toppled a the manoeuvre that forced the Portuguese leader to sign up to for its first bailout. The troika had gone one step further than former ECB vice president and negotiator when Greece applied He was replaced by unelected technocrat Lucas Papademous, Days later, Papandreou pulled his referendum and resigned.

the opposition. any domestic pressure from within Berlusconi's own party or Frankfurt's disposal was of an order of magnitude greater than EU commissioner Mario Monti. This bond-market weapon at ECB on the Monday before he resigned to be replaced with ex-This was signalled by very limited Italian bond-buying by the that ECB chief Draghi was pressuring Berlusconi to step down. Dublin and Lisbon signed up to bailouts, it was widely reported yields soared to 6.5%, near the danger zone at which Athens, scandals, was effected directly by the ECB. As Italian bond untouchable even after 18 years of court cases and corruption heart, most analysts are clear that the overthrow of Berlusconi, European-politburo group effort, albeit with the ECB at its If the toppling of Greece's prime minister was more of a members publicly encouraged him to avoid delay. Rajoy of their role in Berlusconi's ousting, ECB governing council mounted on Madrid to capitulate. In perhaps a polite reminder to would be surrendering his country's sovereignty, pressure was was dragging his feet in requesting a bailout, aware that he and the ECB taketh away. When Spanish PM Mariano Rajoy unambiguous warning to other governments that the ECB giveth Toppling two prime ministers in a week served as a muscular, ing is the topic of vigorous debate between national capitals, but A fully-fledged "Fiscal Union" remains incomplete and as of writdeeper pooling of sovereignty but without democratic oversight. budgets and fines approved in 2011. It is a move towards a still yond the less-than-democratic centralised EU review of national Council, European Commission, Eurogroup and ECB go well beby the self-selected quartet of the presidents of the European Moves towards an EU "Fiscal Union" first unveiled in June 2012 > deficit was set aside. governments. Any remaining anxiety about Europe's democratic the democratic process, and in three cases effectively overthrew changes to fiscal governance and ever greater interference in er-brokers moved forward with ever more radical structural In 2011, that inflection-point year of the eurocrisis, EU pow-

"They made us look like an occupied government"

democratically. be "politicised" – in other words, too important to be decided at its disposal. Monetary policy was deemed "too important" to ments, in this case with a painful set of disciplinary instruments through which a policy area is taken out of the hands of parliawith monetary policy. It also represents another mechanism is a legislative chamber of a sort as well, but solely concerned The European Central Bank, like all "independent" central banks, a line. Brussels were staggered, privately saying the ECB had crossed Portugal to turn off the tap. Even hardened cynics in Lisbon and he had had "clear instructions" from the ECB and the Bank of the country's banking association, Antonio de Sousa, said that but to request an external lifeline. Later in the week, the head of bonds if Lisbon did not seek a bailout, Socrates had no choice Portuguese banks announced they would no longer purchase chief had forced his hand by pulling the plug on the state. When he finally succumbed in April last year, it emerged that the ECB own, it will not require a bailout," he declared. A few days after the same happening to my country. Portugal will manage on its seen what happened to Greece and Ireland and do not want cial coup d'etat by the ECB to bring Socrates to heel. "I have Rajoy, baulked at suffering a similar indignity. It took a finan-Socrates, and more recently his Spanish counterpart Mariano almost total surrender of fiscal sovereignty, Portuguese PM Jose from the EC, IMF and ECB. After seeing this humiliating and from the troika – austerity and structural adjustment monitors miliar by now with the dreaded quarterly arrival of inspectors diminished-sovereignty status in return for bailouts, will be fa-Most citizens in "programme countries," a euphemism for their Berlusconi said at the time: "They made us look like an occupied directing Italian fiscal and labour policy in secret. Even Silvio mechanisms. The ECB, unelected and unaccountable, was now to be instituted, on what schedule and using which legislative The letter told the Italian government exactly what measures had assistance: still further austerity and labour market deregulation. his successor Mario Draghi delineated the quid pro quo for this Corriere della sera from then ECB chief Jean-Claude Trichet and international lenders. A secret letter made public by Italian daily level Greece and Ireland had faced when they applied for aid from a massive bond-buying programme after yields approached the In August 2011, the ECB swooped in to rescue Italy and Spain in before his government could agree to a second bailout and still announced in October 2011 that he would hold a referendum Markets had conniptions when Greek PM George Papandreou

liberals, Greens and social democrats have consistently voted in favour of drives toward deeper economic integration that takes decisions out of the hands of elected chambers. Indeed, the sole EU institution with a direct electoral mandate has gone further in insisting on a gelding of democracy than even the Commission or Council of Ministers would have done.

of rival parties," he wrote in the Federalist Papers. unstable and that the public good is disregarded in the conflicts considerate and virtuous citizens...that our governments are too rule by elites. "Complaints are everywhere heard from our most the "unsteadiness" of governments. Hamilton instead preferred ernment, their tendency for "factiousness" (i.e. politics) and Hamilton who feared ordinary people's capacity for self-govindustrialists. His nemesis was the proto-technocrat Alexander "cesspools of corruption" inhabited by financiers, bankers and and favoured "plain folk" and the "yeoman farmer" over the equality of political opportunity (admittedly only to white males) United States the more egalitarian Thomas Jefferson believed in and most virtuous held the reins of power. At the birth of the would be in society's best interest if the cleverest, most educated suspicion and, while opposing absolute monarchy, felt that it to the widest possible geometry. Others viewed the masses with France and America, some favoured an extension of democracy democracy is and why it is important. At the time of revolutionary Every few generations it seems we must remind ourselves what

Every time there is an election, EU power brokers are petrified that the voters will upset the apple cart. Their response is to warn voters, obliquely in the case of the larger states and more directly in the case of the less powerful ones, to "be responsible." In other words: do not vote the wrong way. Brussels repeatedly seeks out cross-party assurances that the economic policies of the outgoing government will stand whoever wins the election. In this way, voters are allowed to vote for whoever they like, and subjects that see unrelated to fiscal policy such as gay rights or food packaging are unrelated to discussion, but fiscal policies cannot change.

In those cases where voters have rejected Brussels' directions and backed the anti-austerity voices of left or right, immediately after an election EU power-brokers will put into operation efforts to minimise the fall-out, demanding governments of national unity or technocratic administrations.

But post-democracy is not simply a case of getting rid of democracy. As Crouch argues, parties and elections continue to be relevant.

"Politicians in many countries are becoming alarmed at growing voter apathy and declining membership in parties. This is the interesting paradox of the political class. It wants as much as possible to exclude the mass of citizens from becoming actively involved in probing its secrets, organising oppositional activities, disturbing the tight control exercised by the politico-business elite.

But it desperately wants us to offer passive support. It desperately wants us to offer passive interest in its activities, fail to vote for it, give no money to its parties, ignore it. The solution it sees is to find means of encouraging the if approved Brussels would be given the power to rewrite national budgets. If a country needed to increase its borrowing it would have to get permission from other eurozone governments. This is in line with the vision of political union outlined by ex-ECB chief hean-Claude Trichet in 2011 when still in office – of a centralised veto over national budgets jointly wielded by the commission and council "in liaison with" the ECB, with overspending governments "taken into receivership." [5]

The ECB vision, expressed on a number of public occasions by Trichet and subsequently his successor, was described by the former as a "quantum leap." It involves two aspects: a radical liberalising programme of labour market deregulation, pension restructuring and wage deflation on the one hand; and on the other for fiscal policy to be taken out of the hands of parliaments and placed in the hands of "experts" – in the long-term an EU finance ministry – in the same way that monetary policy has been removed from democratic chambers and placed in the hands of Frankfurt.

Orthodox analysts are quite sympathetic to the goals of the central bank. Jacob Funk Kirkegaard of the Petersen Institute, the Washington economic think-tank, wrote: "The ECB is in a strategic game with Europe's democratic governments," an overtly political strategy that is "simed at getting recalcitrant eurozone political strategy that is "simed at getting recalcitrant eurozone politicymakers to do things they otherwise would not do." The bank "is thinking about the design of the political institutions that will govern the eurozone for decades." For Kirkegaard and a number of other long-time ECB watchers, the main target is ultinumber of other long-time ECB watchers, the main target is ultibility not Spain or Italy, but France, historically resistant to more binding eurozone fiscal rules viewed as a radical infringement of its sovereignty. By doing little in the face of market attacks on of its sovereignty. By doing little in the face of market attacks on that it has no choice but to accede to its vision of technocratic that it has no choice but to accede to its vision of technocratic fiscal governance.

Challenged by journalists to explain how such important powers could be taken out of the hands of elected representatives without a serious erosion of democracy, Jose Manuel Barroso said in 2011 that there is no threat to popular sovereignty so long as the member states in the eurogroup vote to give away these powers to civil servants.

"In terms of democracy, let's be clear. When democratic member states in full respect of constitutional rules entrust some entities with some powers, this is a fully democratic principles."

He compared the transfer of fiscal policy to independent experts to the transfer of monetary policy to central banks that has occurred in many countries over the past two decades.

"Just as in our own countries, when we give some powers to a central bank, it is of course not accountable to a parliament, but of course the central bank was created through democratic procedures and is an institution that is absolutely built on a sound democratic architecture."

The European Parliament has failed to defend democracy against these manoeuvres. Since the start of the crisis conservatives, claiming) will be swallowed by the private sector. trillions rather than the roughly  $\ensuremath{\mathbb{E}} 1$  billion the entrepreneurs are discovery and I simply do not believe that the true costs (in the struck me as a travesty of the noble pursuit of extraterrestrial correctly assuming that his audience held a visceral distaste for a waste of their taxes. He did so in classic anti-political fashion, statement intended to reassure audiences that this would not be democratic, public-sector-directed exploration of space in a Gerard 't Hooft, who backs the project, blithely dismissed the the scheme, Dutch Nobel-prize-winning theoretical physicist Even more striking to me was how in a YouTube video promoting bo-jumbo. No tax-payers' money will be involved." [9] Only private firms are going to contribute. No political mum-"As for financing," he said, "this is going to be a private enterprise. politicians.

indistinguishable. ocratic structural consequences of the two statements are many people would actually concur, even though the post-dembe politicised," or is "too important to be distorted by politics" leaders or anyone else says that a particular issue "shouldn't with democratic control over an issue, but when 't Hooft or EU Few people would support an explicit proposal to do away for "political games." [10] eurozone cataclysm was so serious that we no longer have time Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso warned that the was effectively removed by the Frankfurt Group, European who was installed after centre-left leader George Papandreou of Greece, ex-European-Central-Bank man Lucas Papademos Brussels in November 2011 of the technocrat prime minister ploit people's cynicism about politicians. Upon the first visit to Analyse the language here and see how EU power-brokers exand avoid public scrutiny: mechanism to take such decisions out of the hands of politicians premier by the same group, Barroso said that the EU existed as a When Mario Monti first visited Brussels after he was installed as to political manoeuvring." independent enforcement mechanisms that are not subject aldiszog ii ozla bna gninotinom bna tnamzzazza tnabnagab Court of Justice and the ECB. Why? Precisely to have inand now we have the European Commission, the European European Community created supranational institutions, "After the Second World War, the countries that founded the potentially put "millions of people at risk." "I am for secret, dark were simply too sensitive, he said, and holding them in public ocratic, but I want to be serious." Economic policy discussions cy, saying: "I'm ready to be insulted as being insufficiently dempresent, he for once spoke quite frankly about the need for secresmall Brussels think-tank function, forgetting that reporters were long-standing chair of the powerful Eurogroup. In 2011, at a Juncker, the Luxembourgish prime minister and until recently, makes similar comments. I'll give you another from Jean-Claude ical class – elected or otherwise – regularly and unashamedly I don't want to beat up on Barroso alone. The entire EU polit-

> ".fərnətni polling stations, or of enabling voting by telephone or the voter apathy, it thinks about extending the voting hours of maximum level of minimal participation. If it is worried about exemplified in the song by Jarvis Cocker [6]. ical class as inevitably venal and out to swindle the public, as anti-politics) from below, a cynical rejection of the entire polita post-democratic "suspicion of politics" (and what I will call at the level of European (and international) political elites is Crouch also argues that the obverse of the post-democratic turn

[7] ".gnorw gnirthemos populace of spectators when we discover that they got are then subjected to blaming and shaming by an angry the idea that politics is essentially an affair of elites, who ical class, shares with the passive approach to democracy "The negative model, for all its aggression against the polit-

"Well, they're all corrupt, lying bastards, aren't they?" thought of politicians did not respond with some variation of: world where nine out of ten passers-by when asked what they of scotch if they can find me a street anywhere in the Western Anti-politics is pervasive. I'll buy anyone a decidedly nice bottle do you expect from these crooks?" outrage the more common reaction was a shrugging "Well, what the taxation rules mere mortal citizens are subject to. Instead of in efforts to protect themselves and their friends and family from figures in government, and from traditional parties left and right, banking scandals in Greece, Spain and Italy implicated leading There are ever sounder reasons to think so. The 2012/2013 direction, but it can go in other directions as well. tirely. This is to be welcomed if it is channelled in a progressive Deference to authority of all descriptions has broken down en-

Anti-politics, the nursemaid of technocracy

Anti-politics can endorse the post-democratic turn. ernance issues should be taken out of the hands of politicians. be exploited by our rulers to buttress the idea that some or all gov-The anti-political attitude, as Crouch points out, can also actually deregulate that private power." [8] state and Keynesian state, precisely in order to liberate and to rein back the active state, as in the form of the welfare their scope and power...suits the agenda of those wishing expectations of their achievements, and close control of atmosphere of cynicism about politics and politicians, low "[The] post-democratic growing suspicion of politics...an

I am as space exploration-obsessed as the next kid, but this all follow them through their tribulations on the red planet. Now, televised game show that would first pick the colonists and then through advertising and sponsorships for the "Big Brother" style the decisions and the money would come from the private sector by the public sector. Instead a private company would make all Mars by 2023. This mission would not be funded by or directed One, which proposed to establish the first human colony on In 2012, a group of Dutch entrepreneurs launched a firm, Mars other sorts of Italian voters. speaks volumes about the filmmakers' lack of confidence in all emphasis on the bright, young, hyper-educated Italian diaspora checks on democracy, that frightens me. Girlfriend in a Coma's know better than everyone else, this belief that there need to be unacknowledged attitude that there is a group of experts who call them "the mob." It's this lack of trust in regular people, this dismiss "most people" as stupid. A few drinks more and they comfortable for some who feel that their work is above all about professional cohort within this group, although this may be un-Crouch has words for this class too, or at least the NGO-

strengthening human rights and democracy. [11]

ot a healthy positive citizenship?" [12] portance. Crouch asks: "Do these not constitute the embodiment parties has dwindled, and they appear to be ever growing in imgroups in Brussels at the same time as membership in electoral number of non-governmental organisations, causes and pressure Since roughly the 1980s, there has been an expansion in the electoral politics as well. He answers "No" to his own question. These are alternatives to anything so potent as damage to economic success." [13] be successful... Non-business interests can rarely claim unless government listens to them, their own sector will not always have an enormous advantage... threaten[ing] that and systematically. Lobbies on behalf of business interests The resources available to different causes vary massively few rules govern the modalities for trying to exercise influence. bies belongs to liberal rather than democratic politics, in that "The world of politically active causes, movements and lob-

It is an end-run around democracy. is attempted to be achieved and embraces lobbying in its place. the mass political party as the mechanism through which change post-democratic turn in that it is co-incident with the demise of In its own complicated way, the rise of the NGO supports the nels instead of lobbying? work" no longer be achieved through normal democratic chanis beside the point. The question must be asked: why can "good Many NGOs have done and continue to do good work. But this stead explore the post-democratic/anti-political ecology in which "black-hat" lobbying (NGOs vs corporate lobbyists) and to into a simplistic Manichaean division between "white-hat" and Either way, Crouch is right not to reduce the question of NGOism an already existing post-democratic/anti-politics phenomenon? to the post-democratic turn, or is the NGO just a response to action.) Can we really say that the rise of the NGO contributed self-organising force, deciding democratically on the course of representative an NGO's position is, and "the people" are not a work beiddol gnied esoth of temonstrate to those being lobbied how "the people" are objects to be marshalled for this or that purof people behind them (even if in some – though not all - cases cess of many NGOs depends to a good extent on the mobilisation To be sure, the comparison does not work completely. The suc-both exist.

upbringing he had often "had to lie." debates," he joked at the time, adding that despite his Catholic ocratic ends. son in the exploitation of the anti-political attitude for post-dem-The parachuting of Monti into the Palazzo Chigi is an object les-

.llafnwob of unelected figures in Frankfurt and Brussels to orchestrate his through the ballot box or via the streets, not for a shadowy group it is for the Italian people to rid themselves of their tyrants, either political class. But it should be self-evident to any democrat that and there is vast corruption across the spectrum of the Italian Berlusconi is a more than dubious political character to be sure,

We even had a slick, Michael-Moore-style but pro-Monti docutant an issue to be left to the corrupt class of Italian politicians." Monti precisely because "the economic crisis is simply too imporway he was removed, and supported the imposition of technocrat protection, etc. - cheered his ousting, backed the undemocratic strong commitments to human rights, civil rights, environmental Italians in Brussels – many of them friends of mine who profess in the European capital, many of the young professional expat And yet, and I can report here from my experience as a reporter denigration of women. Italian specificities of corruption, nepotism, the mafia and the usual villains of trade unions and overspending as well as the es, privatisation and labour market deregulation. It targeted the of "reforms": further public sector cuts, spending limits, flat taxvoice of Dante Alighieri, endorsed the full EU austerian package Smiths and featured Benedict "Sherlock" Cumberbatch as the from a song by seminal Eighties sensitive indie favourites The shock-therapy aims. Girlfriend in a Coma, which took its title ti-political sentiment against the Italian political class to further magazine, Bill Emmott, which attempted to exploit this anmentary from the former editor of the classical liberal Economist

(albeit presumably only amongst bilingual ex-pats.) tags #wakeitalyup and #italiandiaspora were waiting to go viral their own ideas to the film's website, while the oven-ready hashmany of them graduates. Viewers were encouraged to upload aspora – the million or so expatriate Italians outside the country, an Italian Spring, by specifically targeting the young Italian di-"Campaign to Wake Italy Up." It wanted to create a movement, The film billed itself, in an almost "Occupy" style, as the lest voters spend their way to oblivion. After a few drinks, they to take fiscal decision-making out of the hands of parliaments ordinary people to vote "the right way." They support EU efforts time, when you really push them, they say that they don't trust support democracy and think that they mean it. But at the same International and they bike to work. And they'll say that they Bush haters and Obama lovers. They're members of Amnesty nomically conservative as just economically illiterate. These are on to something. It is not so much that this expat class is ecoin Europe' voting region, compared to 9% in Italy. Emmott was received his highest share of the vote (30%) in the 'Italian expats mopolitans did endorse Monti in much greater numbers – he Regardless of whether they saw the film, youthful expat cos-vote for social democrats.

he had been holding up.

the probability of voting for the extreme right. [17] and abandoned by social democratic parties "significantly raises" the category of those viewed as surplus by the market economy Europe, the empirical evidence supports the thesis that being in real fear about how to make ends meet." [16] Consistently across National scores well among people living in poverty, who have a specialises in the demographics of the Front National. "The Front of globalisation," according to sociologist Sylvain Crepon who north to Perpignan in the south, and is made up of the victims "It is a vote that has taken root east of a line from Le Havre in the bankrupted by competition with the out-of-town hypermarkets. private-sector workers, the unemployed and small shopkeepers alised areas and peri-urban commuter belts amongst low-paid Equally in France, the Front National does best in de-industri-ents expressed a desire for a "real leader to restore order." [19] -bnoqes of responds my ideas," and a full 87% of respond-72% said that "the democratic system in France does not work 82% agreed that politicians act principally in their own interest, recent survey in France for Le Monde made similar findings: mood supporting both the technocratic and fascist routes. A more the ongoing crisis. [18] In this case, we can see the anti-political and technocrats" and 22.7% wanted "a strongman" to resolve respondents wanted the country to be led by "a group of experts A 2011 poll for Greece's Kappa Institute found that 30% of electorates still further, deepening the anti-political sentiment. justment have imposed in this post-democratic fashion alienate social dislocation that the policies of austerity and structural adrealm of democratic contest. At the same time, the deepening of legislative subjects (and in particular fiscal policy) from the post-democratic elites to support the removal of great swathes tually reinforcing. The anti-political mood is exploited by the It is transparent that post-democracy and anti-politics are muexcesses of democracy - the two are essentially identical. They to democracy – and their agreement on the need to curb the their auras of "respectability." But in terms of their relationship two lies primarily in their attitude to force, to minorities, and amilitary force to "restore order." The difference between the cratic technocracy or support of fascism - a strongman or paranti-politics can push in two directions: support of post-demobut it does not need to be this way. We've identified here that For a growing number this has led to a desire for a strongman, are both varieties of despotism.

Anti-politics and selt-government

from fully democratic. they should be defended against despotism, are themselves far liberal political and economic structures that, however much of governing ourselves - and the desire for a transcendence of self-government – the idea that we ordinary people are capable rejection of the political class transforms itself into a belief in and truly democratic direction. There is the possibility that the There is a third direction that anti-politics can take; a progressive mental prerequisite for the achievement of genuine democracy. Indeed, a rejection of the governing classes is the most funda-

Fascism, the acme of anti-politics

for some rather nasty developments indeed. the start of the crisis, that the anti-political mood is fertile ground enjoyed by far-right parties in many European countries since It should be obvious by now, in the wake of the steady growth

a far-right party now solidly part of the mainstream. right "lite" of Geert Wilders – there are few countries left without simply a protest vote), Denmark's Folkparti, the Netherlands' fartial elections now seems like a solidified voting bloc and no longer National (whose 17.9% for Marine Le Pen in the 2012 presidenall hope in the political class. Italy's Lega Nord, France's Front anger, cynicism, apathy and fear of people who have abandoned a sympathetic police, Europe's new far right is soaking up the transport and break up immigrant market stalls in full view of whose gangs of black-shirted bruisers drag immigrants off public of Greece's Golden Dawn (polling 14% at the time of writing) and unashamed antisemitism, to the unreconstructed neo-Nazis Guard) paramilitary association and their anti-Roma pogroms From Hungary's Jobbik, with its Magyar Garda (Hungarian cuts to social programmes of the liberal-conservative coalition attempt to revive his fortunes after he was associated with the Similarly, Geert Wilders' anti-austerity turn is a product of his but was wiped out following its support for the EU-IMF bail-out. on the fringes of the country's political scene, shot up like a rocket cataclysm. Laos, a hard-right Greek Orthodox party historically Golden Dawn was not the first such party to profit from the Greek voters will dump a far-right party with as little regret as any other. less time than it takes a fresh internet meme to come and go, parties that once went back multiple generations now lasting ti-political mood is a harsh mistress. With allegiances to political of complications involved. Support is not consistent and the anof austerity, crisis and the anti-political mood. There are a range This is not to say that the rise of the far right is a simple function working people in almost every European country continue to centre-left party, has been all but wiped out, a clear majority of tive) exception of Greece where Pasok, the country's traditional to the far right. This is demonstrably false. With the (instructhat all blue collar voters have switched from social democracy collapse of social democracy. Of course, it is not as simple to say channel for fury at elites. The rise of the far right is the twin of the of traditional social democracy [14] to present a constructive ti-establishment politics is inexorably linked to the incapacity absorbed by the far right instead. The rise of this form of anattitude is not channelled in a progressive direction it can be It is undeniable, however, that if the "Kick out all the bums"

Bossi to claim that his was "the new working class party." [15] tion that its breakthrough in 2008 allowed then leader Umberto 1980s were strongholds of working class activity and mobilisa-League) has soaked up such support in areas that until the Italy's anti-immigrant and regionalist Lega Nord (Northern poor, and the far right go fishing in these abstentionist waters. But voter abstention is soaring, particularly amongst the working magazine. [21] When the category of "populism" is so broad and encompasses such widely differing sets of politics it ceases to have any meaning.

Melenchon and Tsipras as populists is to deny their own origins temporary European social democrats to describe the likes of social democracy - were all populists and demagogues. For con-Palme, Willy Brandt and Bruno Kreisky - the giants of European were scarcely any different. By this logic, Clement Atlee, Olof the rich until they squeaked. Their continental counterparts full employment and progressive taxation that would squeeze England under democratic control, and deliver public healthcare, ised to nationalise great swathes of the economy, take the Bank of 1945 election manifesto of the British Labour Party which promyears of labour-capital compromise. A useful comparison is the French call Les Trentes Glorieuses – the 30 glorious post-war that ushered in the welfare state through to the end of what the tions of the post-war social democratic parties of northern Europe Melenchon and the Dutch SP are crisply to the right of the posi-The soft-Keynesian policy proposals of the likes of Syriza,

The success of Beppe Grillo's M5S in the February elections, in which they won the most votes of any party, has thoroughly destabilised the political ecology of the country (alternatively it could be argued that the destabilisation of Italy's political ecology allowed Cinque Stelle to succeed). The centre-left coalition led by the Democratic Party of Pier Luigi Bersani mustered little more support than scandal-ridden Berlusconi and is unable to form an effective or durable government. Markets had their predictable effective or durable government, with share prices swooning across the continent and sovereign bond yields spiking across the across the continent to levels not seen for months.

and to denigrate their greatest achievements.

Again we heard the demand "Tutti a Casa!" (Que se vayan todos!) Kick 'em all out!) as M5S soared from 1.8% support in 2010 to 24% within two years. Almost two out of every three voters backed anti-austerity parties and a full 90% did not vote for the party of European austerity – the Monti coalition. Grillo's intransigence in refusing to join any coalition (as of the time of writing) makes the country effectively ungovernable at least in terms of the Brussels-Frankfurt consensus. This is without duestion the first major victory of the anti-austerity resistance. Not the Indignados, not the Greek general strikes, not Tsipras or Not the Indignados, not the Greek general strikes, not Tsipras or Melenchon have achieved this.

We could even say that Grillo has been braver than Taipras in that he campaigned on an explicit platform of withdrawal from the euro and said that M5S would buy back €600bn in Italian bonds from foreign holders while delivering a painful haircut to them — in effect a default—while Syriza has been more coquettish on these questions. That a plurality of Italians — historically one of the most pro-European of EU member states - could confidently endorse a break-up of the euro is a remarkable change in fortunes for the bloc. It changes everything. It is transparently clear that the European elite are losing popular consent for the fortunes for the bloc. It changes everything. It is transparently that the European elite are losing popular consent for the tortune ven amongst its most committed subjects. The challenge to the political legitimacy of the European Union has arrived at the heart of the project.

interplay between Greece's left-wing Syriza party and the popular February 2013 protests that toppled the prime minister, and the the revolutionary anthem "Grandola, Vila Morena"; Bulgaria's gnignis senaups eseugutrol lliftatt stors transmers gnialelding demonstrators that fill Portuguese squares 15-M/Indignados movement of squares in Spain; the carnasee similar dynamics at play in Iceland's 2009 "revolution"; the is well beyond the remit of this paper, but suffice to say that we agement. The conclusion of Argentina's 2001/2002 movement of factories that in many cases turned into industrial self-manwork committees addressing people's needs, and occupations erings in their thousands to local neighbourhood assemblies, solidarity and local decision-making sprung up from urban gaththe government saw its legitimacy collapse entirely. New found caceroleros (noisy street protests banging pots and pans) when gan of the Argentine piquetero movement of 2001 and their "iQue se vayan todos!" (Kick 'em all out!) was the famous slo-

In September 2012, thousands of Spanish protesters surrounded the parliament in Madrid carrying a large banner emblazoned with the slogan of the Argentine piqueteros: "Que se vayan todos!" The centre-left daily El Pais noted that this demand was made "sin distinction" (with no distinction between the different parties), a demand that "experts" warned demonstrated the emergence of anti-democratic populism. [20] On the contrary, it is through these movements that democracy has the best chance of being revived and extended.

protests and general strikes in that country.

As much as we should be optimistic about these developments, not all grassroots movements that emerge in resistance to austerity have a democratic character or should be blindly cheered on. While I've set out three main roads of anti-politics (liberal/technocratic, fascist/authoritarian, and progressive/self-governing) this does not mean that these roads do not at times cross paths. The liberal-technocratic governance of Greece has, for example, been accompanied by a steady ratcheting up of civil repression: arbitrary arrests, police violence, excessive use of tear gas on crowds, rounding-up of dissidents, mass jailing of immigrants, crowds, rounding-up of dissidents, mass jailing of immigrants, collusion between the police and far-right paramilitary, militari-

But we should also consider the hybrid phenomenon of the Five Star Movement (Movimento 5 Stelle, M5S) of comedian Beppe Grillo in Italy, the quintessenza of anti-politics.

Anti-political and pan-ideological

sation of labour, and intimidation of the media.

There should be no time for the lazy category of "populism" that the EU political class applies without ever really defining it to any politics that does not fit within the narrow confines of the liberalising Brussels centre-left-centre-right consensus. For example, both Syriza and Golden Dawn, two parties of radically different perspectives on almost all questions, are lumped together. So perspectives on almost all questions, are lumped together. So not he Front National of Marine Le Pen, and in the Netherlands and the Front National of Marine Le Per, and in the Netherlands the Socialistische Partij and the Partij van de Vrijheid of Geert Wilders. Since the Italian elections in February, Beppe Grillo and well as Socialistische Partij and the Partij van de Vrijheid of Geert Wilders. Since the Italian elections in February, Beppe Grillo and even Silvio Berlusconi have been cast as "clowns" out to destroy even Silvio Berlusconi have been cast as "clowns" out to destroy do as the US does." He argues that so long as workers are represented on company boards in corporatist fashion unions can be done away with.

Even Grillo's anti-austerity position is not as unequivocal as it seems. He backs a slashing of public debt via "cutting waste and with the introduction of new technologies." His desire to see a break up of state firms such as the railroads, Telecom Italia and the public power companies surely is no different to the Monti programme and the demands by Brussels, Frankfurt and Berlin. The MSS mayor of Parma, Federico Pizzarotti, elected in May 2012, has overseen a programme of municipal cuts.

Grillo is silent on questions of taxation and appears not to have any analysis of the global economic crisis other than an unexceptional fury at the mysterious puppet-masters of "Big Finance."

These perspectives are clearly a contradictory mess - public water but private electrics? Were M5S to extend its position in an election in six months' time say, and rather than complete its "civic revolution" in fact be the superintendent of further austerity and structural adjustment, can we be confident that it would have any greater popular support than Monti?

Internally, the movement is run on a rigidly hierarchical basis and is the personal property and will of Grillo and his partner, web marketing guru Gianroberto Casaleggio. There are no conferences or branches. Members that diverge from the duo's perspective are briskly and pitilessly drummed out of the party.

When all this is put together, M5S appears less a replication of Syriza, the Indignados, the Portuguese demonstrators, the Front de Gauche, et al – an anti-austerity movement with Italian characteristics – than a genuinely novel phenomenon, an authoritarian pied piper dressing up his charges in red, green, yellow and black livery: red for anti-austerity, green for environmentalism, yellow for liberalism, and black both for the flirtation with fascism and the dalliance with anarchism.

Parts of M5S do appear to represent an anti-politics of the progressive third kind, but other parts repeat neo-liberal-technocratic and authoritarian anti-politics. In this way it is different from pretty much anything that has come before.

lt is anti-politics, ne plus ultra.

A Strasserism for the twenty-first century

My best guess is that M5S is unsustainable. The ideological contradictions are too profound. The pressures on the party now that it is in the role of kingmaker will be considerable and, unlike Syriza or the Front de Gauche, it simply does not have the structural analytical chops to deal with the economic and political tempest that surrounds it.

This is not to suggest that the likes of Syriza or the Front de Gauche are not also having difficulties dealing with the world-historical nature of the circumstances they find themselves in. But even the sharpest progressive critics of the paths that Syriza and the Front de Gauche have chosen could not deny that within their ranks and in their leadership lies a defined analytical framework to describe the crisis which MSS does not have.

There are also aspects of Grillo's movement (or movement of movements – a coalescence of different campaigns over public water, green energy, etc.) that appear at first glance to have replicated the best horizontal, maximally democratic aspects of Occupy and the Indignados and the resistance movements that have come before: the Seattle-to-Genoa altermondialist movement of the late 1990s/early 2000s. His "Grillini," the 163 fresh-faced new deputies and senators, most of them in their 20s and 30s, were selected through online voting and arrived in Bonce to take up their seats bringing with them little more than backpacks and sleeping bags. Grillo repeatedly declares: "We're not a political party; we're a civic revolution."

There are those who would say that at this early point in M5S' existence it is too soon to be overly judgemental or sectarian towards the phenomenon. They argue that the fact that it is not an expressly progressive movement has so far not undermined its theoretical transformative potential. A number of progressives emerging from what autonomist commentator Federico Campagna [22] (a critic of M5S) describes as the Italian "ruins of the post-2001 movements" (altermondialist, Rifondazione of the post-2001 movements" (altermondialist, anarchist, etc.) have involved themselves with this new force. [23]

But I want to argue that there is sound reason for reticence regarding Grillo and M5S. For the purposes of this essay I am less interested in some of the political positions of the grouping than the question of whether M5S represents a transcendence of the anti-politics that buttresses liberal/technocratic and/or fascist/ authoritarian post-democracy — in other words a progressive/ self-governing anti-politics — or whether instead it is some sort self-governing anti-politics — or whether instead it is some sort of as-yet-unresolved contradictory hybrid form.

Nevertheless, the party's political prescriptions and the particular anti-political flavour of M5S are not unrelated. Rejection of austerity and corruption combine with a focus on public water, environmentalism and a sort of copyleft, digital-rights activism and emphasis on broadband development. Many commentators have referred to the similarities between parts of a Green programme and the Pirate Parties in Germany and Sweden (which are themselves also the beneficiaries of the anti-political mood), and they are not wrong. But Grillo and his Grillini cook up a pan-ideological salmagundi of ideas.

Notably, he is not unfriendly toward the fascists of Casa Pound, a far-right social centre squat named after the fascist sympathising. American poet Ezra Pound, whose estimated 5,000 members are known for their murderous attacks on immigrants, but which also provides housing for impoverished families. [24] Simone di Stefano, a Casa Pound leader and candidate for president of the ask me if you are a fascist." Grillo responded "This is a question that doesn't regard me. We are an ecumenical movement. If a guy from Casa Pound wants to enter the Cinque stelle, and he meets the criteria, he can do that." The pair chatted in front of cameras for some time and endorsed many of each other's positions.

Grillo approvingly quotes Mussolini, opposes citizenship rights for the children of immigrants born in the country, and has said: "The unions are outdated. We no longer need them. We should ing, aciliociacy and civil libelities T.

Italy, and the Nazis, in Germany, did not see themselves as just a harder version of conservative forces. There is a reason why Hitler's party was called the Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei – the National Socialist German Workers' Party.

I do not see any reason why amidst Europe's current climate of deep anti-immigrant racism a contemporary variation on this theme of nationalism, hatred of internal (and external) racial enemies together with a social programme of defence and protectionism could not be widely embraced, perhaps with a dash of localist environmentalism and digital-rights decoration - a Strasserism for the twenty-first century, if you will.

Strasserism describes the "left-wing" strain of Nazism associated with the Strasser brothers, Otto and Gregor Strasser, which was ultimately crushed in 1934 during the Night of the Long Knives. The National Socialists, like Mussolini, had promised a "national revolution" which the Strassers and the head of the robust action to do away with poverty, enact wealth redistribution and topple elite power. Otto Strasser called for wide-ranging land reform that would break up the vast estates of the aristocracy and advocated cooperatives and a system of artisanal guilds. A confused, pan-ideological muddle, the Strasserites favoured through the substance of the artisanal guilds. A confused, pan-ideological muddle, the Strasserites favoured "broductive capital" over opposed "Jewish finance" and attacked "bews on a supposed anti-capitalist basis. As per German Marxist August Bebel, this was Der Antisemitismus ist der Sozialismus August Bebel, this was Der Antisemitismus ist der Sozialismus

Marine le Pen for her part has overseen something of a Strasserite policy turn from her father's regime, emphasising a defence of working people against immigrants and unpatriotic capitalists. There are echoes of this in Wilders' defence of pensions and social programmes for the honest, modest, hard-working mythical Dutch couple, Henk and Ingrid, who face destruction at the hands of lazy immigrants and the depredations of foreign EU masters.

der dummen Kerle – Antisemitism, the socialism of fools.

This is not to describe M5S as explicitly Strasserist and catching out a naïve member of the Grillini for some pro-fascist comments is insufficient for describing the nature of the movement as a whole, however worrying what was said may be. [26] But we should be on our guard when confronted with such a pan-ideological hodge-podge. It is not enough to celebrate the anti-politics of M5S for tapping into "a mood of anger and resistance and a desire for change." So, frankly, did the SA.

Just as it is uninformative of supporters of the EU austerity strategy to categorise any new variety of anti-politics as "populism," it is also important for opponents of the austerity strategy to not blindly celebrate these groups. Instead it must be asked what kind of anti-politics a new phenomenon represents, whether it is democratic itself and whether it has a response to the post-democratic structure (and for that matter the broader economic crisis), or is it just a confused ideological mess?

In the coming years, with the spreading collapse in legitimacy of political elites, all sorts of new-fangled anti-political formations will be thrown up and we must interrogate whether they ultimately buttress post-democracy or prefigure its overthrow.

If M5S can be said to have any analytical framework it is the base, uninformative belief that there is "La Casta," an ill-defined "caste" of venal characters, traitors, who need to be done away with. It is La Casta versus the "honest people." It is the anti-political analysis of Vaffanculo! (Fuck off!) [25]

Why is the Italian case important? The matter goes beyond the scale of the Italian economy, its debt levels and its role in the global economy which puts Greece in the shade. This case is important because M5S is the extreme example of the weakness that is common to all resistance movements.

In many ways M5S' categorisation of the enemy as a "caste" of traitors is not so different from Occupy's nebulous "99% versus thaitors is not so different from Occupy's nebulous "99% versus the 1%." But while the latter is a useful slogan on a homemade cardboard placard and the starting point for a more thorough analysis and deeper understanding of class, markets, financialisation, unemployment, and - in the case of the Indignados and the rest of the EU's structures, Grillo's "caste" is a moralistic endpoint. That said, the 99% analysis is still structurally weak and needs to be transcended.

noritarian and on the defensive. the current crisis, progressive forces were scattered, weak, mitrade unions confident in the power they wielded. Heading into sympathies in many jurisdictions that were linked to militant democratic and Communist parties and even sizeable anarchist forces were markedly more hegemonic. There were mass social crisis of the current scale, the Great Depression, progressive ideologies take hold. Moreover, heading into the last economic demands are achieved and that in downturns, dark, fearful of economic cycles with near full employment that progressive Empirical evidence shows that it is actually during the high points nomic crises tended to be very bad indeed for progressive forces. "wake people up." More sensible analysts recalled that ecoa true catastrophe to rock international capitalism that would unspoken but sometimes explicitly expressed, for a fresh disaster, In the years leading up to the crisis there was a desire, usually

This is to say: anti-politics is not enough. It can be swayed and bent in some very anti-democratic directions.

Some have argued that Beppe Grillo and M5S have prevented the birth of a domestic version of the Indignados or Syriza. They have it the wrong way round. It is the lack of a domestic version of the Indignados or Syriza that gave birth to M5S. When M5S collapses under the weight of its incoherence, there will still be nothing in Italy on the level of these other European movements that can begin to imagine, let alone construct, an alternative.

My great fear is the arrival of a combination of a nationalist Keynesian response to the crisis and a vicious anti-immigrant programme. A variety of anti-politics that arrives with this set of ideas, fronted by a charismatic figure and/or movement, will be very popular indeed.

It is uncomfortable for the left to discuss this topic but it must be broached. We use the term "far-right" to describe all those wretched formations beyond the pale of the conservative mainstream but this is historically inaccurate. The original Fascists, in played and continue to play a similar role on the centre-left of the spectrum. and wage deflation (the four horsemen of structural adjustment) do not the two are not synonymous, as liberalisation, deregulation, privatisation tween them, of course. But for the purposes of this discussion, they all have the European political class and their national compradors. But in truth, parties. This is perhaps unfair, as there have been ideological distinctions belabour, "Socialist," social democrat and, to a certain extent, Communist panoply of policies of both austerity and structural adjustment imposed by [14] By "social democrat" I am sweeping together the rainbow of European http://internationalviewpoint.org/spip.php?article1465 [15] International Viewpoints journal, May 2008, Lydia Cirillo world-europe-17824436 Marine Le Pen's National Front?" http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/ [16] BBC report, 24 April, 2012, Hugh Schofield, "What next for

Endnotes

Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy and Norway. Note that this was 6765.2006.00304.x Their survey covered six European states: Austria, -2741.|\IIII.01:100.3005. Way, 2006. DOI: 10.111|\ill1\frac{1}{1}1476-[17] Kai Arzheimer and Elizabeth Carter, European Journal of Political Research, 1032E\noiniqo 'Vote how you like, but the policies cannot change"' http://euobserver.com/ [18] Leigh Phillips, EUobserver, 17 May, 2011, 'The junta of experts tells us: carried out prior to the crisis.

francaise_18121655_823448.html politique/article/2013/01/24/les-crispations-alarmantes-de-la-societe-Alarmantes de la Société Française" Francaise' http://www.lemonde.fr/ [19] Gérard Courtois, Le Monde, 24 January 2013, "Les Crispations sin distinción' http://politica.elpais.com/politica/2012/09/30/ [20] Anabel Diez, El Pais, 30 September, 2012 "Que se vayan todos", [21] The Economist 2 March, 2013 "Send in the clowns: How Beppe Grillow Im14.130309_7370509451\babilautoa and-silvio-berlusconi-threaten-future-italy-and-euro-send http://www.economist.com/news/leaders/21572763-how-beppe-grillo-manners/2157276-how-beppe-grillo-manners/21576-how-beppe-grillo-manners/215and Silvio Berlusconi threaten the future of Italy and the euro" manifestos What We Are Fighting For (2012 Pluto Press). "Bito" Berardi and the co-editor of the collection of anti-austerity resistance [22] Campagna is a collaborator of the Italian autonomist philosopher Franco five-star-shaman-the-meaning-of-beppe-grillo/ Beppe Grillo" 5 March, 2013 http://novaramedia.com/2013/03/ [23] Novara radio programme "Five Star Shaman' - The Meaning of italy-fascists-true-mussolini-ideology November, 2011 http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/nov/06/ [24] "Italy's fascists stay true to Mussolini's ideology," The Guardian, 6

[25] See for example his Vaffanculo Day: http://www.beppegrillo.it/ated, the ideology of fascism had a socialist-inspired sense of national commu-Deputies, in which she praised Mussolini's ideology saying: "Before it degenerof Roberta Lombardi, a member of the party freshly elected to the Chamber of [26] Shortly after the election, daily newspaper La Stampa discovered a blog post eng/2007/06/vaffanculoday.html

nity and a very high regard for the state and the protection of the family."

increase in public outlay. necessarily require a cut in public spending, in fact they often entail an [1] For the sake of legibility, I use the term "austerity" as shorthand for the full are overtly racist, of course. the austere, cold, sexless but sensible northern Hausfrau. Both stereotypes archetypes of the loving, jovial, fecund but feckless southern Mama versus to learn from each other. He is invoking here the Protestant-point-of-view culture of competitiveness" and "southern culture of solidarity" that need when EU President Herman van Rompuy, for example, speaks of a "northern The culture "knows" southerners are lazy. And the Weberian narrative is alive academia would be able to reference explicitly, but regularly do so implicitly. Protestant work ethic – a narrative that few northern Europeans outside of capitalist success being a product of Protestant hard work and frugality – the neo-liberalism's continued dependence upon Max Weber's narrative of religious differences between northern and southern Europe, but due to European political class (so far as I know) has made mention of the [2] I mention "Protestant" parenthetically not because any member of the

[3] C. Crouch, p 22, Post-democracy (Polity Press, 2004)

[4] Crouch, p 4

Growth Pact,) the Fiscal Compact, and "Fiscal Union." system, the "Six-Pack", the Euro Plus Pact (successor to the Stability and discipline while removing democratic accountability: the European Semester manoeuvres in the last couple of years that steadily ratchet up the fiscal [5] All of this is a very much simplified discussion of the series of treaty http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=monylosoKxg [6] J. Cocker, "Cunts are Still Running the World", Polydor 2007

[/] Crouch pl4

[8] Crouch p23

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=n4tgkyUBkbY [9] Mars One promotional clip, uploaded 6 June, 2012 (emphasis added):

[10] Leigh Phillips, EUobserver - "The EU techno-party is hollowing out democracy", 30 November, 2011 http://euobserver.com/opinion/114425

do is far more piercing than anything Crouch has to say. own criticism and recognition of the contradiction at the heart of what they international MacGuffin conference somewhere else, after a few beers their worker whether in Brussels or in the evening after some godforsaken [11] Although in my experience as a bar-hopping wingman of many an NGO

[13] Crouch, p18 [12] Crouch, p15

citizen's rights and liberties have been lost. of political, economic and social life to the extent that many #### of immigrants who do not have a residence permit The privatisation of healthcare and the exclusion

society as a whole.

represents a serious reversal in terms of individual rights and for The new model retreats from providing universal health care and de la Seguridad Social (National Institute for Social Security.) beneficiary must be recognised as such by the Instituto Nacional citizen to a model of affiliation in which an insured person or right to healthcare from being on the basis of one's status as a 2012 and came into force on 1 September. The law shifts the (Congress of Deputies, the lower house of parliament) in May 16/2012 which was approved by the Congreso de los Diputados the right to health care. It did this through royal law decree no. One of the first things to be cut by the Spanish government was cuts. This pruning process has affected practically every sphere Fear is being used to coerce the population into accepting these tive: to prune the social gains that have been won over time. generically come to be called "the crisis" have a stated objec-The austerity policies implemented in response to what has

rights and liberties in Spain

Austerity policies also cut

Peio Aierbe, Mugak/SOS Racismo

the debt is settled. Pressure by citizens has forced the Partido Popular (PP) to modify its initial opposition and allow the ILP to undergo parliamentary scrutiny on 13 February 2013. Moreover, it was left to the European Union's Court of Justice (ECJ) to issue a ruling on 14 March 2013 that recognised the existence of abusive clauses in mortgage loans. The court empowered judges to suspend eviction proceedings when they deemed such clauses to exist and ruled that the government must review the clauses to exist and ruled that the government must review the legal framework on mortgage loans and evictions.

Criminalisation of assistance to undocumented immigrants

A further turn of the screw to worsen the already precarious position of migrants whose stay has not been regularised was proposed in September 2012, when the government presented a draft bill to reform the penal code. It would introduce the possibility for public prosecutors to charge people for lending assistance to irregular migrants. Past jurisprudence from the courts concerning provisions in the current penal code had altered y ruled out punishment for acts motivated solely by solidarity, or a will to lend humanitarian assistance. The proposed Article or a will to lend humanitarian assistance. The proposed Article

"The Ministerio Fiscal [public prosecutor] may abstain from bringing charges for this offence [assisting undocumented immigrants] when the pursued objective is solely to lend humanitarian assistance to the person concerned." [emphasis added]

Rather than making it obligatory not to bring charges, the wording leaves it up to the public prosecutor to decide whether or not to bring charges. This legal absurdity already exists in the current art. 318 bis of the penal code, where it is left to the courts - including the Supreme Court - to clarify the reach of the wording and to exclude actions motivated by solidarity from its scope. The current wording leaves it possible, for example, that those receiving undocumented immigrants in their home, or helping them financially, may be punished with a prison sentence of up to two years. The government's intention has been widely rejected two years. The government's intention has been widely rejected two years launched, alongside several others, and succeeded in obtaining statements from numerous town councils opposing this legislative measure.

Financial obstacles to accessing justice

The Spanish government approved a Law on Judicial Charges (Ley de Tasas Judiciales) on 21 November 2012 which made access to justice more expensive by setting a charge of between 100 and 1,200 euros to appeal against a decision in court. There has been widespread criticism of this law because, once it is implemented, justice will no longer be equal for rich and poor. It has not only been rejected by numerous citizens' groups but also by the majority of magistrates' associations (magistrates, prosecutors, lawyers, court clerks, etc.) The latter announced that they would test its legality before the Constitutional Court, arguing that it contravenes the equality of Spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of Spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of Spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of Spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of spanish people before arguing that it contravenes the equality of spanish people before measure has not received popular support. According to a survey Contrary to the Spanish government's aims, this exclusionary has allowed the Basque government's decree to remain in force. the Constitutional Court. The outcome is pending, but the court ment appealing against the Basque government's decree before health care to these people. This resulted in the central governrendered the law void through a decree and continues to provide enacting the new law. The Basque government, for instance, the Spanish federal system) have contrived formulae to avoid autonomous communities (regional administrative councils in to consider conscientiously objecting to the new law. Several This prompted a large number of health service personnel groups migrants dependant on accident and emergency (A&E) services. of minors and pregnant women, leaving other undocumented population from getting public health care, with the exceptions The new law peremptorily excludes the irregular immigrant entitled to the right to the protection of health and health care." foreigner whose residence is settled in the national territory is Health no. 14/1986 established that "Spanish people or a Until the enactment of decree 16/2012, the General Law on by Metroscopia on 19 December 2012, 77% of the population

Evictions

reject it.

awareness of the issue. sation has helped those threatened by eviction and raised public by Mortgages). Using the slogan "STOP evictions", the organide Afectados por las Hipotecas (Platforms for People Affected their homes found themselves led to the creation of Plataformas situation in which hundreds of thousands of people who had lost unemployment, were unable to make repayments. The appalling guarantees and who, as the situation worsened due to increased loans to buy houses despite not possessing sufficient financial immigrants who had been encouraged by banks to request to 321 per day. A significant number of these evictions involved 2012, there were 391,032 mortgage repossessions, equivalent there were 49,702 evictions. From 2008 until the first quarter of ber of mortgage repossessions across Spain was 67,537 and of Judicial Power), during the first nine months of 2012 the numthe Consejo General del Poder Judicial (CGPJ, General Council edly been a large increase in evictions. According to a report by One of the most brutal effects of austerity measures has undoubt-

Judges had a strong influence on public opinion after they became protagonists in late 2011 when some of them began issuing statements criticising the legislation on mortgage loans and evictions that forced them to unjustly evict thousands of families. Media coverage of their criticism, and the death of a number of people who committed suicide when judicial officers arrived to evict them, forced political parties and the government to appear more responsive to the situation. A Popular Legislative Initiative evict them, forced political parties and the government to appear signatures, was delivered to the Congress of Deputies. Among signatures, was delivered to the Congress of Deputies. Among other things, the Initiative recognised repossession as repayment stations.

it will include the bulk of the proposals presented by migrant with the policy of cutting back on rights, it seems unlikely that ing completion after several years of discussion. In accordance Regulation to regulate the operation of the centres, which is nearwent unanswered. These precedents form a backdrop to a draft were rejected outright, and even those submitted by the MPs support associations and the judiciary.

A unified response by citizens

There is plenty of scope to continue illustrating its effects. For ing austerity measures to tackle the so-called economic crisis. The above examples are only some of the consequences of us-

refectories and a general increase in university fees. of thousands of teachers being sacked, the closure of school on the cuts to the education budget that have resulted in tens over 50% of young people out of work. Or I could have focussed the European Union, with 25.8% of the active population and fragile. Spain already has the highest unemployment rate in dismissals easier, lowers wages and renders employment more instance, I could focus on labour market legislation that makes as is evident from its divisive measures. targets. It is the government's intention to exacerbate any splits, attack from the measures, such as the migrant population, as avoided falling into the trap of treating other groups that are under important, the opposition forces are unified and, so far, they have sectors are joining the protests daily. Moreover, and this is very tion is gradually growing and becoming less intimidated. New accepted by the public. However, in the case of Spain opposihave been trying to arouse fear as an ally for their reforms to be I started this article by saying that the public administrations > the Law on Judicial Charges was modified four months after it the inconsistency of the Partido Popular's method of governing, Consejo General del Poder Judicial. In a display that highlights istrates participated in the strike according to figures from the only the third such action in 35 years. 41% of judges and magstrike by magistrates and prosecutors on 20 February 2013, #### institutions Demonstrating: a criminal offence against the State's

was enacted.

also being examined. demonstrating while concealing one's face a criminal offence is on MPs. The possibility of modifying the penal code to make pants to surround the Congreso as a means of exerting pressure after demonstration-organising committees called on particioutside the Congreso de los Diputados, as happened recently state's institutions" to people participating in demonstrations a measure provided in the penal code as a "crime against the known as the "indignados" or "15-M". These include applying demonstrate since the appearance of the protests and camp-ins The government has been using limitations to the right to

Denial of access to detention centres for NGDs and journalists

MPs, human rights organisations and the media. The requests Européennes, a request for access to the centres was made by led by the Euro-African Migreurop network and Alternatives within the framework of the "Open Access Now" campaign the human rights violations that occur within them. In 2012, control over the way in which these centres are managed, and tres for foreigners) leads it to try to avoid any form of democratic in Centros de Internamiento de Extranjeros (CIEs, detention cen-The opacity of the Spanish administration concerning conditions accounts and the "redditometro" (income-meter) to counter small children, limits on cash transactions, compulsory bank The "technical" government has introduced passports for a spending review to rein in costs that are viewed as wasteful. workers' rights that undermines the security of employment and services, eligibility for pensions being delayed, an assault on pled with "austerity" measures which range from cuts to public payments above 500 euros. Increased control has been couto pay for their passports and for pensioners to receive pension account - set up by their parents - will be necessary for children and forcing everyone to have bank accounts. A personal bank exclusive holiday resorts; the introduction of passports for infants by the customs and excise police (Guardia di Finanza, GdF) in at the helm included: limits on the use of cash; targeted controls ground economy. Measures approved during Monti's 14 months economy such as widespread tax evasion and a sizeable under-Monti tackled a number of structural problems with the Italian on 16 November 2011, the "technical" executive led by Mario After taking over from Silvio Berlusconi's discredited government elections were called for February 2013, Monti threw off his Libertà (PdL) caused him to lose his majority in parliament. After Monti resigned after opposition from Berlusconi's Popolo della The "technical" government fell on 21 December 2012 when

Yasha Maccanico

"socially underprivileged" category. will be available "without costs" for people falling within the that the agreement with ABI will ensure that this basic account charge or at a reasonable charge." Law decree 201/2011 states should ensure that a basic account is provided either free of July 2011, whose section 4 point 9 states that "Member States as defined by the European Commission Recommendation of 18 a basic account should be compatible with "financial inclusion"

The 2012 report on the state's accounts for 2011 notes that: evasion, organised crime and a substantial informal economy. warnings about the loss of revenue resulting from corruption, tax Conti (CdC), which audits Italy's accounts, has repeatedly issued in the preparations for the G8 summit. Moreover, the Corte dei umented scandals including corruption at Finmeccanica and at the forefront of revealing cases of corruption. Report has doc-Report. Its presenter Milena Gabanelli has for many years been cashless society was launched involving the Rai 3 programme of cash for sums above 1,000 euros, a campaign to promote a While the Monti government was preparing to outlaw the use revenue recorded only for these two taxes." (p. 70) a figure of over 46 billion [euros] per year in missing tax (a regional tax on economic activity) at 19.4%, providing AAAI to tent bine % E. 9.3 sh noiseve TAV to ester entity the rate of IAV billion [euros]). Estimates from the tax revenue agency... ground economy in 2008 at 17.5% of the GNP (that is, 275 and finance ministry estimated the incidence of the under-"Recently, a commission established within the economy fiscal system." (p. 21) instruments is to attain a higher "tax compliance level in a mass stressed that a key aim of the development of IT and telematic (p. 4). The report submitted during this oversight session may come from the operation of IT and telematic instruments" lighted that: "it is evident that a contribution to their reduction evasion phenomena the CdC president Luigi Giampaolino highcommission on the anagrafe tributaria, after outlining the tax On 12 July 2012, at a hearing before the parliamentary oversight

2010."(p. 13) found in summons issued by the regional prosecutors' offices in most important source of tax revenue damage, according to data nested within the public administration and represents the third which is in constant growth in Italy, has also become settled and 14 September 2011 stressed that "the corruption phenomenon, counter corruption and illegality in public administration held on A CdC text approved for submission to an audit of the draft law to

Passports for infants: travellers treated as suspects

prior to the new provisions will be valid until the passport's expiry. which children's data was recorded on their parents' document amended by EC Regulation 444 of 28 May 2009. Passports in and travel documents issued by Member States" which was "on standards for security features and biometrics in passports is in application of EC Regulation 2252 of 13 December 2004 will require their own personal passport to travel abroad. This snorim (noistinemplement and in July 5 of 26 June 2012 (the deadline for implementation)

> e Libertà (SEL, Left, Environment and Freedom). Democratico (PD) would run in alliance with Sinistra, Ecologia standing for election when it became apparent that the Partito the status of senator for life by president Giorgio Napolitano) by mantle of impartiality (to maintain which he had been granted

A cash-free society

high risk of evasion to be subjected to controls" (art. 11.4). the data will be used to "identify taxpayers for whom there is a agency's (Agenzia delle Entrate) controls section. Nonetheless, al commander of the GdF or the central director of the tax revenue customers' transactions without prior authorisation by the regionsuch operations. The GdF will not be able to use this data on bank is necessary for fiscal controls" as well as the sums transferred in along with "any information concerning these relationships that tions" to the tax collection residents' register (anagrafe tributaria) "financial operators must periodically communicate transacarticle 11.2 of the decree establishes that from 1 January 2012, be recorded in bank records and accessed by the GdF. In fact, forbidding the use of cash for such payments, enabling them to ment of sums in excess of 1,000 euros. This was achieved by to save Italy) included tracking transactions involving the payby the Monti government under the "decreto salva Italia" (Decree The first measures to shore up Italy's banking system introduced financing. used to launder the proceeds of criminal activities or for terrorist EU provisions designed to prevent the financial system being by law no. 148 of 14 September 2011 in order to comply with 21 November 2007. This limit was lowered to 2,500 euros imposed on cash transactions by legislative decree no. 231 of measure was not unprecedented. A limit of  $5,000\,\mbox{euros}$  was payments to 1,000 euros and countering the use of cash." The of 6 December 2011, "Lowering of the limit for the tracking of clearly expressed in the title of article 12 of law decree no. 201 The government's intention to restrict the use of cash per se is debit card) and whose cost structure is transparent. The cost of account available, providing minimum services (including a Italiana (ABI, Italian Banking Association) to make a basic bank ministry will reach an agreement with the Associazione Bancaria lowed to charge these users any costs. The economy and finance a bank account and banks and financial entities will not be alfrom the requirement of paying the ordinary tax (bollo) for having made to exclude people on the minimum wage or state pensions ers and any other payments that are due. Provisions have been This includes wages, pensions, and payments to service providcases where cash is used, the amount cannot exceed 500 euros. must be transferred into current or post office accounts and, in to move beyond the use of paper-based transactions. Payments be processed by telematic and IT means as part of the process expenses paid by local and central public administrations must istrative costs that derive from the management of cash." Thus, payment instruments [and] reducing the financial and admin-"for the purpose of favouring the modernisation and efficiency of The 201/2011 decree added article 4 ter to the 148/2011 law including any annual savings. that are not included in the chart gauging "contributive capacity," the Agenzia delle Entrate reserves the right to use other categories live, as well as average spending patterns for each type. Finally, on the basis of their family unit type and the area in which they analysing "significant samples of taxpayers" who are categorised paying capacity." This "inductive content" may be identified by based on the inductive content of elements that indicate their tax "synthetic assessment of the overall income of persons may be to make it "more efficient." The premise of the measure is that the changed socio-economic context of the last decade" and from 2009 onwards. Its stated aim is to "adapt" controls "to matched their declared income. It is applicable to revenue ditometro" to gauge whether the living standards of taxpayers finance ministry set out the provisions for the so-called "red-On 24 December 2012, a decree issued by the economy and socioeconomic analysis. averages for family unit typologies, and that produced through arising from the costs of services and goods, that estimated from The tax revenue authority will use the higher figure between that recorded activity due to suspicion of large-scale tax evasion. of estimates of what people should be earning rather than their used to collect taxes from freelance professionals on the basis contributive capacity. Sectoral studies have intermittently been will also be treated as "inductive elements" to gauge a taxpayers' should earn in a given profession, particularly freelance workers) studies, some of them sectoral (that is, estimates of what people age expenditure will be estimated. Socioeconomic analysis and (northwest, northeast, centre, south and islands) whose aversingle parent; and other) divided into five geographical areas couple with two children; couple with three or more children; over-65; couple over-65 without children; couple with a child; 35-64 years old; couple 35-64 years old without children; single unit (single under-35; couple under-35 without children; single spending. The relevant chart details 11 different types of family taxpayer belongs, based on national statistical studies on their the average costs incurred by the type of family unit to which a (art. 1.2). A second "inductive element" will be drawn from may be used as "elements indicative of contributive capacity" to acquire services and goods, and for their maintenance, that A chart is provided to indicate the costs incurred by taxpayers of foodstuffs, drinks, clothing and shoes; residence (mortgage, covering the widest possible range of expenses: consumption version of the readditometro to 11 categories with subdivisions miums. These were expanded in the table attached to the 2012 ary homes; domestic workers; race horses; and insurance pretransport and motor vehicles or camper vans; main and secondairborne vehicles; boats and sea vessels; cars, other means of measure: luxury goods and vehicles; home costs and insurance; There were nine categories in the table attached to the 1992 similar measure approved in 1992 makes for amusing reading. Contrasting the chart's spending categories with those from a The "redditometro" has been changed on numerous occasions.

The "redditometro" (income-meter)

> chip. The regulation notes that: and digital signature will be acquired and stored on the relevant provisionally set at 12 years, at which age a child's fingerprints the age when fingerprints will be taken is required. This has been The Regulation states that a degree of harmonisation concerning period of validity of the passport or travel document". es which make it difficult to check them during the entire identity. Furthermore, they are subject to significant changnot to be of a sufficient quality for one-to-one verification of that the fingerprints of children under the age of 6 seemed "During gnind amos ni stoejects it appeared a ramification of EU institutions' growing pre-occupation with really a problem or whether the proposed changes are in fact of whether the fraudulent use of children's travel documents is are protected against fraudulent use." This begs the question contribution to ensuring that passports and travel documents and the passport or travel document, thus making an important secure and establish a more reliable link between the holder elements" will render "passports and travel documents more Wegulation.) The 2009 Regulation notes that the "No son son" (although Denmark, Ireland and the UK are not bound by the UE and the most single the entire population of the EU This is part of the process to introduce heightened security phase (lasting up to 26 June 2013) to as low as six years of age. States may reduce the lower limit during a four-year transitional fication and verification purposes." In the meantime, Member using the fingerprints of children under the age of 12 for identian evaluation of the accuracy of the systems in operation, of amine the reliability and technical feasibility, including through be lowered following the publication of an in-depth study to "ex-The Regulation notes that the age limit will be reviewed and may surveillance, identification and security.

applicants will have to produce two biometric photographs of the for ten years in the case of adults. To be issued the document, minor's identification during border controls." Passports are valid security" by enabling "the updating of the photograph and the they are 18, to "guarantee the minors greater individuality and three years of age, and renewed every five years thereafter until pay for the document. The passport will be valid from birth to involve setting up a current bank account in the child's name to would need to apply for a passport for their child which would the child itself. Had they not already done so, the child's parents whose charge the minor will be, as well as those of its parents and declaration and photocopies of the identity cards of the person in going to the city's police headquarters (questura) with a signed passport during border controls. In this case, travelling will entail by the police that they will have to hand in along with the minor's for them will be needed. This person will be issued a document signed declaration bearing the name of the person responsible els abroad accompanied by someone who is not their parent, a when the application is processed. Whenever an under-14 travapplication for the travel document and they must be present The agreement of both parents will be necessary to validate an minor. The cost of a passport is 82.79 euros.

the tax authority has available to it, as reliably as possible." capability to spend, as detailed on the basis of the data that unbearable for small and medium businesses. and uncompromising tax collection at prohibitive levels is proving cases a stranglehold between delays in payments from the state sis-induced suicides are other significant phenomena. In many without an adequate social security network. Evictions and criare closing (11,615 in 2011) and unemployment is on the rise, councils fell in  $2012\,\mathrm{due}\,\mathrm{to}\,\mathrm{scandals})$  , thousands of businesses in public administrations (both the Lazio and Lombardy regional failing to fulfil its obligations to its citizens. Corruption is rampant of citizens by the state. Moreover, for its part the state is routinely are indicative of a move towards ever-increasing social control economic crisis. These measures, alongside the redditometro, when banks have fallen into disrepute due to their role in the to have a bank account also solidifies the role of banks at a time of transactions as possible flows through them. Forcing everyone tempt to shore up the banks by ensuring that as high a proportion because they have never needed one. It also appears to be an atcounts by choice, because they have never had much money or and will cause problems to people who do not have bank acsubstantial in Italy, although the low threshold appears excessive ter tax evasion and the informal economy, which are admittedly laundering and terrorist financing. This was supposedly to councash payments complied with EU measures to counter money of an EU Regulation, while lowering the minimum threshold for Monti government. The passport measure was in application The measures detailed above are not limited to Italy and the

Social and fiscal control as the new imperative

are prevalent.\* ill-suited to a country in which small and medium businesses backfired and that his neo-liberal recipe for tackling the crisis is that Monti's entry into the arena of electoral politics may have aim is to rid parliament of the existing political class. It appears support from the virulently anti-austerity M5S whose stated to muster a workable majority. To do so they are trying to obtain as marginal victors, Bersani's PD alongside SEL, appear unable vote. This means that the pre-election favourites who emerged with the outgoing prime minister only winning around 10% of the (Berlusconi's PdL and Beppe Grillo's Movimento 5 Stelle, M5S), their ballots for parties that opposed Mario Monti's policies of disenchantment with "austerity." Over 50% of voters cast The election results of February 2013 highlighted the degree > ty, vehicles, shares, insurance policies, bonds, art works and payments to spouses); and economic investments (in properprofessional services, hotels and holidays, eating out, regular jewellery, silverware, watches, bags, suitcases, payments for barbers, hairdressers, beauty care, personal care products, spas, goods and services (insurance, social security contributions, and cultural events, online gaming, horses, pets, vets); other pay TV, leisure activities, sports clubs, season tickets for sports stationery, TV license, Internet services, plants, repairs, lotteries, games (games, toys, television, radio, books, magazines, music, ies, studies abroad, student hall fees); leisure time, culture and education (nurseries, schools, paid courses, postgraduate studcar rentals); communications (purchase of telephones and bills); (repair costs, oil, petrol, maintenance, spare parts, trams, buses, tic workers); health (medicines and visits); means of transport services (cleaning products, underwear, pots and pans, domesheating and energy; furniture, electrical home appliances and rent, water, condominium, maintenance costs etc.); fuel, central may result from generic estimates. burden of proof is placed on them to reverse an assessment that tax returns and their spending does not change the fact that the have an opportunity to explain any "incongruence" between their further controls and, possibly, fines. The fact that taxpayers will gruence" with declared income, the criterion that will result in are used to meet expenses would also be flagged as an "inconsons and daughters long after they become adults. Savings that time of high youth unemployment many families support their notions such as average expenditure disregard the fact that at a assess the likelihood that they are guilty of tax evasion. Moreover, taxpayer's private life, including the pettiest details, in order to  $% \left\{ 1,2,\ldots ,n\right\}$ In short, they would allow a precise picture to be drawn up of any

most "shameless tax evasion." He explained that: police state" and that it was merely a means of identifying the head of the tax revenue agency, replied that "we are not a fiscal Italy or the Stasi in East Germany. Two days later, Attilio Befera, the tables are reminiscent of fascist police officers in pre-1945 "fiscal police state." He said that the "bureaucrats" who drew up sparked controversy by describing the measure as those of a On 6 January 2013, Corriere della Sera columnist Piero Ostellino income that emerges from a subject's tax returns and their tion, striving to identify the degree of correlation between the databases and uses statistical indicators with extreme cau-"our redditometro consists of an IT procedure that crosses originario?atto.dataPubblicazioneGazzetta=2013-01-04&atto.

This figure is drawn from a European Commission Small Business Act for Europe country profile for 2012. * Italy has the highest number of small and medium businesses in the EU (3,813,805).

7) Tabella A – Contenuto induttivo degli elementi indicativi di capacità Annexes to the "redditometro" decree:

appartenenza. (GU 4.1.13) 2) Tabella B – Tipologie di nuclei familiari e relative aree territoriali di http://www.gazzettaufficiale.it/atto/serie_generale/caricaDettaglioAtto/ fondata la determinazione sintetica del reddito, (GU n.3 del 4.1.13), judicativi di capacita' contributiva sulla base dei quali puo' essere Decreto 24 December 2012, Contenuto induttivo degli elementi http://www.governo.it/backoffice/allegati/65684-7206.pdf per la crescita, l'equita' e il consolidamento dei conti pubblici.

References

antiques).

Decreto legge, 6 December 2011, no. 201. Disposizioni urgenti

codiceRedazionale=12A13737

contributivi. (GU 4.1.13)

for security features and biometrics in passports and travel documents issued by Council Regulation (EC) No. 2252/2004 of 13 December 2004 on standards

Commission Recommendation of 18 July 2011 on access to a basic payment Member States.

http://eur-lex.europa.eu/LexUriServ/LexUriServ. account, (2011/442/EU)

Interior ministry press statement, 20.7.12, "Passaporto individuale anche per i do?uri=0J:L:2011:190:0087:0091:EN:PDF

Interior ministry, "Necessario il documento individuale per i minorenni in Polizia di Stato, "Passaporti: occhio ai minori", 19.7.12.

Polizia di Stato, "Passaporto per i minori", 16.11.12, .S1.8.72, "oiggaiv

http://www.poliziadistato.it/articolo/view/191/

"Il redditometro del dottor Stranamore. Fiori, animali, pentole: perché respingo Monti", 15.12.11, http://www.dirittoitaliano.com/approfondimenti/articolo. Diritto Italiano, "Indagini bancarie e diritto di difesa a seguito del decreto procedura informatica", Attilio Befera, Corriere della Sera, 8.1.13. "Perché non siamo uno Stato di polizia fiscale. Il nuovo redditometro è solo una l'invasione del Fisco", Piero Ostellino, Corriere della Sera, 6.1.13.

> http://www.corteconti.it/export/sites/portalecdc/_documenti/chi_siamo/ informativo dell'anagrafe tributaria ai fini del suo contrasto", 12.7.7.22. tributaria. Valutazioni sul fenomeno dell'evasione fiscale e sul sistema della Corte dei Conti – Commissione parlamentare di Vigilanza sull'anagrafe Corte Dei Conti, Sezioni Riunite in sede di controllo, "Elementi per l'audizione sezioni_riunite,sezioni_riunite_in_sede_di_controllo/S012/volume_l.pdf Bilancio", http://www.corteconti.it/export/sites/portalecdc/_documenti/controllo/ Generale dello Stato 2011, Volume I, "I Conti dello Stato e le Politiche di Corte dei Conti, Sezioni Riunite in sede di controllo, Relazione sul rendiconto sites/portalecdc/_documenti/chi_siamo/audizioni/12_luglio_2012_testo_ The report submitted for the above hearing: http://www.corteconti.it/export/ audizioni/12_luglio_2012_sintesi_audizione_presidente.pdf

oortalecdc/_documenti/controllo/sezioni_rinuite/sezioni_riunite_ini_sede_di_ pubblics amministrazione" (A.C. 4434), http://www.corteconfi.it/export/sites/ per la prevenzione e la repressione della corruzione e dell'illegalità nella Testo per l'audizione sul disegno di legge del Governo recante "Disposizioni

Member States. for security features and biometrics in passports and travel documents issued by 28 May 2009 amending Council Regulation (EC) No. 2252/2004 on standards Regulation (EC) No. 444/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of controllo/2011/delibera_47_2011.pdf

deafening silence of Lurope Golden Dawn and the

Jerome Roos, editor, ROAR online magazine

on further austerity. Weimar-like scenario might be tolerable for EU leaders insisting With a neo-Nazi party on the rise in Greece, it seems that even a be allowed to tear the Old Continent and its people apart. upon this promise. Never again would fascists and warmongers The cosmopolitan project of European integration was founded atrocities became known in the wake of World War Two (WWII). slogan resounding across Europe after the full scale of Nazi Hitler was born in 1889. "Never Again." This was the uniform a memorial stone underneath the Austrian house where Adolf Millions of Dead Remind Us." Those are the words carved into "For Peace, Freedom and Democracy. Never Again Fascism.

power and setting the world on course for WWII. German Workers' Party in 1930, three years before rising to This is a showing comparable to that of Hitler's National Socialist Golden Dawn party now polls third [1] in Greece, at 14 percent. woefully silent when a recent survey indicated that the neo-Nazi democracy and human rights," those same leaders remained its Nobel Prize for "the advancement of peace and reconciliation, ironies that, as EU leaders were busy deciding who would collect One day it may therefore be considered one of history's greatest

Convention of Human Rights prohibiting torture. these acts to be "in violation" of the Third Article of the European fascist slogans to their comrades – no European official declared strip naked, bend over and spread their buttocks while reciting point of severe bruising and broken bones and others forced to been tortured by police [11] in prison – with some beaten to the published a terrifying report on forty anti-fascist activists who had "in violation" of German budget laws. But when The Guardian told journalists that the cancellation of Greece's debt would be Recently, a spokesman for the German Chancellor Angela Merkel rule of law have all been relegated to secondary concerns. that Greece repays its debts. Democracy, human rights and the silence. The only thing European leaders seem to care about is Athens, Brussels and Berlin remain shrouded in a deafening it seems. As neo-Nazi militia run amok [10] in the streets of Europe. And what do EU leaders have to say about this? Nothing, It is happening again. Fascism is once again on the rise in [6] with the early days of the austerity-stricken Weimar Republic.

Even the mild-mannered BBC is now making eerie comparisons such hits as "Auschwitz" and "Speak Greek or Die." Its former Golden Dawn's favourite band is called Pogrom, [8] known for groms [7] against Greece's immigrant population. (Incidentally, kindergartens; and whose MPs actively participate in racist po-out of hospitals and all non-Greek children out of hospitals and all rivals on a live TV show; whose manifesto pledges to drive all himself; whose spokesman recently assaulted [5] two female magazine [4] regularly features articles and pictures of the Führer gave the Nazi salute [3] upon his election to Parliament; whose [2] deliberately resembles a swastika; whose leader publicly Golden Dawn is an extreme-right organisation whose emblem Socialism and Golden Dawn is by no means an exaggeration. For clarity's sake: the comparison made between National

Land one of Golden Dawn's 18 MPs.)

José Manuel Barroso, President of the European Commission, In fact, European leaders seemed indifferent. In May 2012, violence. iceberg, as many victims are too terrified to report abuse and to fill the void. the weight of its debt repayments Golden Dawn has stepped in migrants to Golden Dawn. As the Greek state crumbles under that they actively refer Greeks who have "problems" with imcalls by immigrants and activists, it is now commonly known officers deliberately ignore criminal complaints and emergency "60 percent support" [19] among the police force. Not only do by and did nothing. No wonder Golden Dawn proudly claims an arrested fellow fascist from a police van. Police officers stood was part of the mob, Christos Pappas, was even seen freeing a journalist trying to do his job. Another Golden Dawn MP who as inti-fascist protesters trying to protect the theatre as well as homophobic abuse at the director of a critical play and beating caught on video [18] during a mob attack on a theatre, hurling Earlier this month, Golden Dawn MP Ilias Panayiotaros was continues to service its debt. a strong flavor of fascism might be tolerable – as long as Greece are pushing unto the European periphery. Perhaps, then, even the continent could greatly complicate the austerity agenda they because they know that admitting the resurgence of fascism on in the rise of Golden Dawn. Perhaps they prefer to stay silent that European leaders realise how deeply implicated they are neo-Nazi elements in its midst? Perhaps the answer is simply that a Nobel Peace laureate simply ignores the rise of violent its concern and admit that the problem exists? How is it possible tant does the situation need to get for Europe to at least express Never again, we used to say. Never again. How much more bla-

> ignore it and keep his head firmly in the sand. so it could "use them for its own purposes", Barroso preferred to wilfully allowed "pockets of fascism" to infiltrate the police force Greek police officer confirmed [13] that the Greek government is, which can only be done at national level." When a senior vaguely stating that "we have to define what a neo-Nazi party to Golden Dawn, and sidestepped any form of responsibility by publically questioned [12] the neo-Nazi label being attached are subhuman." declaration [15] in the Greek Parliament stating that "liming rants Europe. A few weeks later, on 18 October 2012, Zaroulia made a Discrimination of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of MP Eleni Zaroulia joined the Committee on Equality and Nonentirely discredited when, on 1 October 2012, Golden Dawn arate from the EU. What's more, the commission's concern was independent Strasbourg-based organisation that is entirely sepbut his commission is part of the Council of Europe, [14] an Dawn is the Commissioner of Human Rights, Nils Muižnieks, So far, the only person who has pledged to investigate Golden [stormtroopers]. The numbers are likely to be only the tip of the forms – one of the trademarks of Golden Dawn's Sturmabteilung attacks were perpetrated by gangs of men in paramilitary unifrom October 2012 confirmed [17] that more than half of these 500 hate attacks [16] in the previous six months alone. A report 19-year-old Iraqi, the Migrant Workers Association reported over causes of concern. In August, following the racist murder of a the streets and its infiltration of the police force are the greatest least of the country's troubles. The organisation's presence on Golden Dawn's sudden rise in Greek institutions is perhaps the co.uk/world/2012/oct/09/greek-antifascist-protesters-torture-police after Golden Dawn clash" The Guardian 9.10.12. See http://www.guardian. [11] See Maria Margaronis "Greek anti-fascist protesters 'tortured by police'

This article originally appeared in the online version of ROAR Magazine

8.5.12. See http://euobserver.com/tickers/116177 [12]56e "Barroso questions 'neo-Nazi' label for Golden Dawn" EU Obsever world/2012/oct/26/golden-dawn-infiltrated-greek-police-claims claims officer" The Guardian 26.10.12, See http://www.guardian.co.uk/ [13] See Aris Chatzistefanou "Golden Dawn has infiltrated Greek police,

Council_of_Europe

greek-mp-immigrants-are-subhuman/ Recorder 18.10.12. See http://greece.greekreporter.com/2012/10/18/ [15] A. Papapostolou "Greek MP: Immigrants are Subhuman" Greek com/4dcgi/_w_articles_wsite1_1_14/08/2012_456870 ekathimerini 1,3.13. See http://www.ekathimerini. [16] "Nearly 500 hate attacks carried out in the last six months"

world-20105881 BBC News Europe 26.10,12, See http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/

[19] Aris Chatzistefanou "Golden Dawn has infiltrated Greek police, claims xukxyq_golden-dawn-mp-ilias-panayiotaros-at-hytirio-theatre_news BorderlineReports. See http://www.dailymotion.com/video/world/2012/oct/26/golden-dawn-infiltrated-greek-police-claims officer" The Guardian 26.10.12. See http://www.guardian.co.uk/

[17] See Paul Mason "Love or nothing: The real Greek parallel with Weimar"

"Golden Dawn MP Ilias Panatoiyeasa at Hytirio Theatre"

pz E tQtdO75Y/s1600/Greek-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Michaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Michaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Michaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nikolaos-Nichaloliakos-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nichaloliako-via-neo-Nazi-leader-Nichaloliako-via-neo-Naz[2] See http://2.bp.blogspot.com/-j-OnLG7j2Pk/T9GQ-I74a3I/AAAAAAAACdU/ %olden-dawn-rising-pasok-vanishingpoll/ Reporter 19.10.12 http://greece.greekreporter.com/2012/10/19/ [1] Andy Dabilis "Poll Shows Golden Dawn Rising, PASOK Vanishing." Greek

[4] See http://p.twimg.com/A5EHaiCCEAERp7R.jpg:large giving-nazi-salute.jpeg?w=300&h=208&h=208  $\label{eq:composition} \end{\ensuremath{\mbox{\ensuremath{\mbox{\sc com/2012/10}}}} \ensuremath{\mbox{\sc com/2012/10}} \ensuremath{\mbox{\sc co com/2012/10}} \ensuremath{\mbox{\sc com/2012/10}} \ensuremath{$

[5] See "Greek far tight Golden Dawn MP titts opponent on TV – video", The

Endnotes

greek-golden-dawn-mp-hits-opponent-tv-video in Greece" http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/video/2012/jun/0// [6] See Helena Smith "Golden Dawn threatens hospital raids against immigrants Guardian http://p.twimg.com/A5EHaiCCEAERp7R.jpg:large world/2012/oct/26/golden-dawn-greece-far-right and the far right" The Guardian 26.101.2. See http://www.guardian.co.uk/ [7] See Maria Margaronis "Fear and loathing in Athens: the rise of Golden Dawn pogrom-punk-the-greek-neo-nazi-rock-bands-boosting-golden-dawns-rise/ http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2012/10/29/ Golden Dawn's rise" Washington Post 29, 10, 12. See [8] See Max Fisher "Pogrom Punk: The Greek neo-Nazi rock bands boosting

Europe 26.10.12. See http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-20105881 [9] See Paul Mason "Love or nothing: The real Greek parallel with Weimar" BBC News immigrant-vendors-outside-athens-onlookers-simply-watch/ theblaze.com/stories/2012/09/08/shocking-video-greek-neo-nazis-attack-Outside Athens, Bystanders Keep Walking" 8.9, 12, See http://www. [10] See Erica Ritz "Shocking Vid: Greek Neo-Nazis Attack Immigrant Vendors deliver a safe protest which protects residents, tourists, commuters, protesters and the wider community. Should you do so we will at the earliest opportunity arrest and place you before the court." [4] Since the revolts the Met has increased training for police officers in the use of baton rounds and is planning to purchase three water cannons.

The Met's interim report on the August revolts [5] makes clear that chief among the police's "failings" was their inability to control people's movements. The report seeks to address "the level of resource required under mobilisation plans and how officers can be deployed in a more agile way." As was the case in the Six Counties, the fundamental response will be an increase in the ware of force alongside the techniques of control:

"Reviewing alternative tactics to deal with large scale disorder, including options for the use of water cannon. The MPS has increased the number of officers trained to deploy with baton gun teams so that teams can be deployed more flexibly if and when required... Developing a CCTV strategy that will cater for any future London wide incident and exploring what can be developed, with appropriate financial investment, regarding further CCTV and facial recognition the public order powers or a review of other legislation may be beneficial in dealing with large scale disorder." [6]

granted and location fixed. is required by the police to be "pre-planned", with permission simple refusal of the rioters to treat protest as something that to contain or disperse was taken away from the police by the August this system of policing broke down because the decision options; to isolate, contain, arrest or disperse the crowd." In serious disorder, public order officers are faced with four basic Owen's report states that "When confronted with a scene of the society of control only works if we acquiesce to such control. meant the Met was outflanked. This showed quite simply that mobile, dynamic, geographically diverse nature of the revolts contingency for disorder." In August 2011, the spontaneous, would be "able to themselves prepare a policing plan with a designed only for "pre-planned protest" before which the police the police nationwide, was that their policing techniques were As the report makes clear, what went wrong for the Met, and

"dom" ant gninsinu9

In Gilmour–v-R (2011) EWCA Crim 2458 the Court of Appeal considered the appeal against the sentence of a middle class student (the adopted son of the Pink Floyd guitarist Dave Gilmour) who had been convicted for his part in the December 2010 student protests - specifically the "mob disorder" in Oxford Street and the attack on the car convoy containing the Prince of Wales. The sum total of Gilmour's actions was that he sat on the bonnet of the car, kicked a window and stole a mannequin. He received a Of the car, kicked a window and stole a mannequin. He received a 16 month custodial sentence. The court rejected the appeal and had to reflect not the basis for the decision was that the sentence had to reflect not the individual act alone but the "inflammatory context" as per Hughes LJ at para 16:

Collective punishment and pre-emptive policing in times of riot and resistance

Nick Moss

Anti-austerity protests and the revolts of August 2011 have led to the introduction of increasingly draconian forms of policing. Individuals involved in these demonstrations face severe collective punishments by the courts for the combined effect of what is done en masse.

lead to Tasers being carried in 6,500 police cars. [2] officers authorised to carry Tasers and Hogan-Howe's plan would police car should have a Taser. [1] There are already 2,000 Met Metropolitan police (Met), Bernard Hogan-Howe, said that every of weaponry has been prioritised. The new commissioner of the repress the nationalist community. Arming police with a range which was adopted in the Six Counties [of Northern Ireland] to is particularly interesting is that the model they chose is that of policing adopted as part of the machinery of austerity. What the working class, has led state agencies to reconsider the form maintain the creditworthiness of British capital at the expense of ther revolts, in the face of a deliberate drive through austerity to Duggan clearly demonstrated as much. The anticipation of fur-2011 and the revolts which followed the police killing of Mark embrace our fate quietly. The student demonstrations of early would insist, we should anticipate that some of us will not If austerity is our destiny, as UK Chancellor George Osborne

Pre-empting the student demonstrations

Prior to the November 2011 student demonstrations in London, Hogan-Howe made clear that he had pre-authorised the use of baton rounds. [3] During the demonstration an "operational decision" was made to restrict the time students were allowed to gather at the London Wall assembly point and keep them on the agreed route of the march (this power is afforded to police under the Public Order Act 1986, sections 12 and 14). Anyone leaving the route of the demonstration or overstaying the two-hour time period imposed for gathering at London Wall was liable to be arrested for a public order offence. Prior to the march a letter was sent to individuals who had been arrested on a previous anticuts protest. Signed by Simon Pountain, the Met commander leading the policing operation, it stated: "It is in the public and your own interest that you do not involve yourself in any type of criminal or antisocial behaviour. We have a responsibility to the extent to which the public peace is broken..." motives. It is the degree of mob violence that matters and with whether it originates from gang rivalry or from political vicious violence of gross degree the court is not concerned that lies in the power of numbers. When there is wanton and against those who, to attain such a purpose, use the threat purpose. The law of this country has always leant heavily by weight of numbers pursued a common and unlawful this type derives its gravity from becoming one of those who of its precise form, in an unlawful or riotous assembly of peace is broken... Any participation whatever, irrespective violence that matters and the extent to which the public

"Sading with "imminent threats"

the peace." that the police reasonably apprehend an imminent breach of actual breach of the peace has occurred, it is therefore essential tion of "imminence": "If police action is to be justified where no development within the case of the discussion around the questhe Democracy Village protest from Parliament Square) and the of Abbotsbury – who had already authorised the clearance of AC 105 by the Master of the Rolls (at this point Lord Neuberger of Gloucestershire Constabulary [2006] UKHL 55, [2007] 2 noteworthy for the referencing of R (Laporte) v Chief Constable Royal Exchange and Climate Camp demonstrations. The case is ing decisions made in handling the crowd which attended the brought by two claimants, who challenged a number of polic-[2012] EWCA Civ 12 dealt with judicial review proceedings and Joshua Moos) v Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police The case of The Queen (on the application of Hannah McClure

Lord Mance in these terms: Imminence was described at [2007] 2 AC 105, para 141, by

thus have relevance." of any further opportunity to take preventive action may judged in the context under consideration, and the absence to some measure of minutes. What is imminent has to be be judged in absolute and purely temporal terms, according into violence. That is not to suggest that imminence falls to power of last resort catering for situations about to descend any citizen including the police to take preventive action as a appropriately identifies the common law power (or duty) of "The requirement of imminence is relatively clear-cut and

Carswell said about imminence at [2007] 2 AC 105, para 102: every intervention into an exercise of crisis management." Lord group hoves into sight before taking action," as that would "turn there was no need for the police officer "to wait until an opposing Lord Rodger of Earlsferry said at [2007] 2 AC 105, para 69, that spontaneous breaches." an earlier stage temporarily than in the case of other more of the peace it may be possible to regard it as imminent at that where events are building up inexorably to a breach In particular it seems to me rational and principled to accept recognises the relevance of the circumstances of the case. "[1]t can properly be applied with a degree of flexibility which

> bined effect of what is done en masse." and that the harm done to the public stems from the comown, inflames and encourages others to behave similarly, individual act, whatever might be its character taken on its "It is an unavoidable feature of mass disorder that each the combined effect of what is done en masse. Thus the sentence reflects not the actions of the individual but a crime, [7] the simple act of "demonstrating" is intimidatory and therefore be doing anything intimidatory. The judge effectively ruled that was despite the fact that none of the defendants were shown to enterprise - that as a group they had intended to intimidate. This determined that the defendants were guilty on the basis of joint Forfnum and Masons UK Uncut protests where the trial judge in the conviction of 10 people for aggravated trespass in the of their actual level of participation. This could be seen again designed to collectively punish all those involved, regardless ished for the actions of the mass as part of a sentencing process It is hard to avoid the conclusion that individuals had been pun-ness was utterly shocking and wholly inexcusable." (para 1) them, these were deeply disturbing times. The level of lawlessall over the country between 6 August and 11 August 2011. For unaware of and were not horrified by the rioting which took place can be very few decent members of our community who are 2312 as per Lord Justice Judge, the Lord Chief Justice, "There combined appeals in R-v Blackshaw et al (2011) EWCA Crim According to the review of post-riot sentencing contained in the riots are committing aggravated crimes. They must be punindividually commit further crimes during the course of the and fear to even the most stout-hearted of citizens, and who turbances of this magnitude, causing injury and damage It is very simple. Those who deliberately participate in disto provide both punishment and deterrence, must follow. Mevertheless, the imposition of severe sentences, intended riots or the people who were injured or suffered damage. to protect the neighbourhoods which were ravaged in the of course, possible now, after the events, for the courts in which they live and work. This is an imperative. It is not, and to protect the homes and businesses and the streets whether in their homes or in their businesses or in the street to do what they can to ensure the protection of the public, "There is an overwhelming obligation on sentencing courts

The review continues:

Cr. App. R 499 at 506: in the aftermath of the riots, Judge refers to R v Caird [1970] 54 consideration. In his confirmation of the sentences handed down identify the police actions as a trigger for the revolt is excised from By defining the rioters as apart from "the public" any attempt to ished accordingly, and the sentences should be designed to deter others from similar criminal activity."

gang rivalry or from political motives. It is the degree of mob the court is not concerned with whether it originates from When there is wanton and vicious violence of gross degree protesters). Lord Neuberger resolves that the kettling of demonstrations at the Climate Camp was lawful:

"We have concluded that a decision to contain a substantial crowd of demonstrators, whose behaviour, though at times unruly and somewhat violent, did not of itself justify conwas the least justifiable on the ground that containment was the least drastic way of preventing what the police officer responsible for the decision reasonably apprehended would otherwise be imminent and serious breaches of the peace, as a result of what he reasonably regarded as the immediate risk of the crowd being joined by dispersing demonstrators from another substantial crowd, which had itself been contained, as its behaviour had been seriously violent and disorderly." (emphasis added)

The obvious danger is that the concept of "imminence" becomes so elastic that in effect the police in the first instance and the judiciary in the second, can retrospectively justify any action to restrict assembly, regardless of the facts on the ground.

[5] Operation Kirkin "Strategic Review Interim Report" Opera

"At [2007] 2 AC 105, para 29, Lord Bingham of Cornhill made the point that a constable has a 'duty' as well as a 'power' to 'seek to prevent... any breach of the peace occurning in his presence..., or any breach of the peace which is about to occur.' Secondly, Lord Rodger said at [2007] 2 AC 105, para 84, that a police officer could stop potential protesters from proceeding further, 'even if they were entirely peaceful', provided 'there was no other way of preventing of other more spontaneous breaches." The Master of the Rolls

it as imminent at an earlier stage temporarily than in the case exorably to a breach of the peace it may be possible to regard on a political judgement that "where events are building up in-

Thus, the "preventive action as a power of last resort" is based

These are the same arguments that have been used to justify the police tactic of "Kettling" (the police containment or corralling of an imminent breach of the peace"."

Endnotes

goes on to recite:

[1] The Guardian 22.11.11 [2] Ibid

[3] The Guardian 9.1 [8]

[4] The Guardian 8.11.11

activities and to political protest. This has led to growing public gro.24[munfrof.www[7]

piq1 [9]

dissent over its use. The municipal fines system was launched in 1999 to alleviate the overburdened lower court of justice (parket). It enabled local authorities to issue (and collect) fines for minor infractions that are defined by municipal bylaws. Initially the fines were only applied to adults, but in 2004 the age range was lowered to 16 years (albeit with a maximum upper limit of up to 120 euros when applied to under-18s). On 13 December 2012 the federal government lowered the age range further to 14 and increased the size of the fines. [1]

The original 1999 law has been gradually amended to broaden law enforcement remits and their application. Initially, only local police officers and those with law enforcement powers could issue administrative sanctions, but since 2005 the municipalities but since 2005 the municipalities. As administrative sanctions, but since 2005 the municipalities created special 'GAS officers' who roam the atreets to identify and fine people who are 'causing a nuisance.' The city of Antwerp, for instance, issues around 1,000 fines each month and has 30 'GAS civil servants,' mostly former rubbish collectors.

Until recently, those fined generally accepted the sanction and there was little organised protest. In 2012, however, it became known that the sanctions were being used not only to punish minor acts, but as instruments of political repression. This caused a public outcry.

Selgian 'municipal fines' rause growing dissent

BibuH seeX

Fines have been issued for an array of bizarre "offences" and have been used to target individuals involved in organising political protests.

Tens of thousands of people, predominantly youths, have been issued with 'municipal administrative sanctions' (Gemeentelijke Administratieve Sancties, GAS, or SAC in Wallonia) over the last few years. These fines are issued by local municipal functionaries, so called GAS-ambtenaren often from rubbish or park maintenance units, against people they deem to be causing a "public nuisance." The definition of what constitutes a public nuisance is decided by the municipality itself, as is the size of the fine, which can vary from 50 to a few hundred euros. The sanction, which was introduced as an administrative efficiency measure, is increasingly being arbitrarily applied to everyday the action to a café. For this they received a fine. permit to hold a demonstration in the town square they moved flu vaccinations for all elderly people, but having been denied a PydA party in Antwerp in winter 2011. They were demanding of 'political GASfining' was made against members of the leftist photographed and detained for more than an hour. Another case

The architect of the GAS fine system

fine, had been a mistake. for evaluating complaints on the same authority that issued the ceded that the 2005 amendment, which bestows responsibility In an interview with the website DeWereldMorgen [5] he coninterpreted by the municipalities and that oversight was lacking. fines, van den Bossche admitted that the law was being broadly system in 1999. When confronted on the arbitrary application of Former minister, Luc van den Bossche, created the GAS-fine council they were evicted from the town hall by the police. [8] had protested against the fines. While trying to address the city  $\ensuremath{\left[\,\right\rangle\xspace}$  Two days before the Elsene demonstration, students in Gent record for the number of fines with 6,000 having been issued. gathered in Elsene, a suburb of Brussels which holds the Belgian "criminalising the youth." More than a hundred demonstrators organisations involved in youth issues, arguing that they were GAS-fines [6] in November 2012 together with some 25 Belgian SAC policy. They staged a protest against the current practice of and youth organisations, are now demanding reform of the GAS/ such as the Human Rights League (Liga voor Mensenrechten) The Chiros movement, along with dozens of other organisations now" said the organisation's spokesperson Matti Vandemaele. ising street events. "Even climbing in a tree is being criminalised ilar to a Scout group, many of its members were fined for organ-Although this traditional youth organisation from Flanders is sim-GAS-fines in Belgium is the Chiro movement (www.chiro.be). One organisation campaigning against the arbitrary issuing of constantly confronted with "absurd GAS-penalties." [9] will force more young people to roam the streets and they will be political-economic dimension: the economic crisis, he argued, of a legal base for issuing the fines and also highlighted the Nolf, a former judge. In an interview, Nolf pointed to the lack One of those warning against the growth of GAS fines is Jan > carries the risk of incurring court costs if unsuccessful. this is seldom done because the procedure is cumbersome and decision can be appealed at a local second instance court, but responsible for assessing the appeal against it. The authority's ent complaints body and the authority that issued the fine is It is possible to appeal against a fine, but there is no independ-

The theatre of the absurd: fined for eating a sandwich

est sandwiches in the same spot three weeks later. [3] This caused a public outcry and led to 100 people gathering to in October 2012 and was threatened with a fine of 100 euros. rested for eating a sandwich on the stairs of a church in Mechelen public bench. Jef Coulommier, an 18-year old student, was arand waving to a friend and not sitting in the right position on a throwing paper on the ground, imitating a police siren, honking GAS fines issued. [2] It includes fines for feeding birds in a park, nal PIDmagazine published a special issue on the most bizarre led to a wide array of behaviours being outlawed. The online jourprohibited and subject to sanction by the city council. This has Every municipality has its own bylaws which list acts that are to repair your car on the side of the road. graveyards "unless using a bucket" and in Mortsel it is forbidden ing people (Lokeren). In Hasselt it is forbidden to mix cement in confetti during carnival and throwing it again (Deinze) and scarleaving ice hanging from your roof (Dendermonde), picking up Local municipal rules further prohibit, among other things:

Political nuisance fines

arrested an hour before the protest was to take place, identified, for "planning to organise a protest on Astrid Square." They were the fines with which the two were issued was a pre-emptive fine euro fines but they were not overturned, merely halved. One of a clean up after a gathering. They appealed against their 150 pencils (which could be used to write slogans) and assisting in was that they had been observed attending meetings, carrying local group in September 2012. The evidence against them being accused of involvement in organising actions by their of Occupy Antwerp" were each issued with triple fines [4] after organising political protests. Two people identified as "leaders Municipal fines are now being used to target people involved in

Wikipedia: http://nl.wikipedia.org/wiki/bemeentelijke_administratieve_sanctie

Official police information on the GAS fines: (http://www.lokalepolitie.be/5418/gas.html

Endnotes

- sspx?artikelid=DMF20121213_00401027) and http://www.standaard.be/artikel/detail. artıkel/detail.aspx?artikelid=DMF20121003_00320633 [1] De Standaard 3.10.12 Gas Boetes Omhoog http://www.standaard.be/
- [2] Online magazine on GAS-fines http://www.stampmedia.be/pidmag/
- nieuwsblad.be/article/detail.aspx?articleid=DMF20121030_003535631 [5] Wieuwsblad 31.10.12 Acties tegen Boete voor Broodjeseter http://www.
- broodje-smeren-tegen-gas See pictures and report at http://www.dewereldmorgen.be/foto/2012/11/13/
- artikels/2012/09/20/occupy-antwerpen-en-pvda-betwisten-gas-boetes-van [4] DewereldMorgen 20.9.12 http://www.dewereldmorgen.be/
- detail.aspx?articleid=BLSME_20121130_001 [7] See video of the demonstration here: http://www.nieuwsblad.be/article/

luc-van-den-bossche-vader-van-de-gas-boete-herkent-zijn-kind-niet-meer

www.mensenrechten.be/index.php/site/nieuwsberichten/

[6] Report on demonstration on website mensenrechten. be http://

http://www.dewereldmorgen.be/artikels/2012/11/19/

verslag_protestactie_gas_nee_bedankt

- mtd.7217195120004-9lbitra knack.be/nieuws/belgie/studenten-protesteren-tegen-gas-boetes/ [8] Knack 26.11.12 Studenten protesteren tegen GAS-boetes http://www.
- dewereldmorgen. be/artikels/2012/05/21/2006regas-boetes as a fine partikels of the properties of the[9] Interview by stampmedia on website DeWereldMorgen 5.12.12 http://www.

are kept out of the public eye, including the feedback given by different agencies to the coroner on the measures to prevent further deaths. Moreover, despite the adoption of the Coroner and Justice Act in 2009 (partly in force in 2013) underlying issues such as sentencing policy will not be part of what corossues such as sentencing policy will not be part of what corossues such as sentencing policy will not be part of what corossues.

ners consider.

of the total prison population (as of June 2011). of involvement in the criminal justice system," making up 25% life. Second, these young adults have "a disproportionate level mental health problems and are more likely to take their own that young people in prison are more likely than adults to have ally and psychologically. Studies referred to in the analysis show research has emphasised their vulnerability, especially emotionthe Inspector of Prisons' recommendations in 2011. Empirical all, 18-24 year olds are not treated as a specific group despite of young adults is also considered to be inappropriate. First of which at ten years of ages is the lowest in the EU. The detention England and Wales should raise the age of criminal responsibility Committee on the Rights of the Child, the authors believe that are not very serious." In line with the recommendations of the UN shows that many children are in fact imprisoned for offences that using detention as a last resort, since "ample research evidence use of custody for children. The report stresses the importance of is treated less favourably when it comes to the reduction of the general population. The research found that this particular group children in custody, although they represent only 15% of the Asian and Minority Ethnic) people who make up to 27% of the below the age of 16, with an over-representation of BAME (Black, almost one quarter of them on remand. Among them, 26% were cent years, there were still 1,690 children in custody in 2012, Despite the reduction in the number of children detained in re-

Through their work, both organisations have come to the conclusion that children and young adults held in custody are "amongst the most disadvantaged in society" – homelessness, death of a parent, time spent in care, victims of domestic violence or abuse, drug issues, mental health problems - and had in many instances been "failed by the systems set up to safeguard them from harm."

The decision to put children and young adults in custody despite their vulnerability, and the failure to address their fragility once detained are considered as the main causes for self-harm and sucide cases. Between 2003 and 2011, 194 young people died in aged 18-24 were self-inflicted. The report points at disastrous shortcomings in the assessment of the vulnerability of detained shortcomings in the assessment of the vulnerability of detained children and young adults despite the recommendations in 2006 by the Lambert Report following Joseph Scholes's death. The report criticised the failure to protect young adults detained in report criticised the failure to protect young adults detained in prisons from bullying, and the absence of sufficient medical care prisons from bullying, and the absence of sufficient medical care

An entire section of the report is dedicated to the disturbing use of restraint against children and young adults, a practice which was reviewed in 2007 following the death of two young adults, one in prison and the other in a secure children's home. However, if "pain restraint techniques" are now prohibited in all and therapeutic services in prison.

swajva1

Fatally Flawed: Has the state learned lessons from the deaths of children and young people in prison? Prison Reform Trust and INQUEST, 2012, pp.66 (ISBN: 978-1-908504-03-6)

Reviewed by Marle Marlin Between 2003 and 2010, INQUEST provided specialised casework services to the families of children and young adults who died in custody in the UK. In 2005, the charity published its first overview on the subject called In the care of the state?

INQUEST's monitoring of the deaths of young people and childen started in 2003 following the death of Joseph Scholes (16) who died in a Young Offenders Institution (YOI) in March 2002 "rais[ing] serious concerns about the treatment of vulnerable children and young people within the criminal justice system." Despite the charity's and families' requests, the call for a public inquiry into the deaths of five children and 188 young adults since 2003 was rejected.

This joint report by the Prison Reform Trust and Inquest aims to provide an alternative to the absence of a concerted approach by the authorities, and the "inadequate institutional responses to the deaths of children and young people in prisons." It analyses "trends and evidence derived from the deaths of children and young people [18 to 24 years old] between 2003 and 2011."

The report provides a comprehensive overview on the reality of the detention of young adults and children: the vulnerability assessment mechanisms in place, the inquest process following a death in custody, research establishing the specific needs of children and young adults in detention. The authors also provided statistics and background information on the detention of children and young adults and on the profile of those who died in custody between 2003 and 2011. Their statistical research shows that "recommendations from inquests and investigations shows that "recommendations from inquests and investigations into previous deaths have not been properly implemented."

Both organisations took the cases of five children or young adults who died in custody to illustrate different shortcomings in understanding the causes for these deaths, from the decision to put the young offender in custody (the issue of the custodial threshold), to the assessment of the children and young adults' vulnerability and their special needs – including mental health problems and risks of self-harm.

The report starts with a description of the investigation process following the death of a child/young adult at a secure children's home, securing training centre, young offender institution or adult prison. This process has been amended since the adoption of the Serious Case Review Process in 2008 but is still believed to have a "limited effectiveness", particularly because of the length of the procedures (up to two years as identified by the Independent Advisory Panel on Deaths in Custody in 2011), the impediments to family participation, and the lack of transthe impediments to family participation, and the lack of transparency in the conclusions of the investigations. Most reports management agency). Surveillance System), and the creation of Frontex (EU border System off the Spanish coasts), EUROSUR (European Border exponentially, e.g. with the establishment of SIVE (Integrated rity and surveillance at the border and beyond has developed of the "securitisation of external borders," the demand for secu-Since 2002 and the appearance in public discourse of the notion irregular migrants. it through building walls and detention centres and deporting scapegoat (migrant) community and stress their efforts to counter technologies. The latter play on the political potential of creating a the best way to protect citizens – e.g. investment in surveillance security which advise governments on what they consider to be The former are enthusiastic participants in "expert groups" on is in the interest of both security companies and governments. since the 1980s, a tendency that has increased since 2001, been increasingly associated with terrorism and organised crime Asinistriang fear again 's irregular migrants who have something." Rodier adds: "the least disruptive way of doing nothing while appearing to do who described the barrier dividing India and Bangladesh as proved useful? Rodier cites the economist Jagdish Bhagwati centres are proliferating. Have these containment strategies built worldwide to exclude undesirable migrants and detention several non-EU related examples. 18,000 km of walls have been Mauritania, Libya, Ukraine, Turkey etc.), the book also draws on readmission agreements, EU funded detention centres built in and their externalisation to neighbouring countries (through While mainly focused on the EU's migration control policies age to pass through." non-negligible part of so-called undesirable migrants manvirtual (radars and sensors), are far from impassable: a "These barriers, whether legal (visa), physical (walls) or cooperation funds are used to win the support of third countries complex on the research and development of new technologies, entire apparatus. Vast sums are spent by the security-industrial incurred raise serious questions about the proportionality of the If the usefulness of migration controls is debatable, the costs often cross the border again after they have bribed border guards. mostly symbolic since migrants removed by Morocco to Algeria countries. In fact, migration controls in this part of the world are EU's interests; it is part of long-lasting tensions between the two controls at the Morocco-Algeria border does not only serve the aspire to be regional leaders. Thus, the emphasis on migration controls" supports the geopolitical interests of countries who relation is not a one-way-street. The "externalisation of migration Rodier points out that what seems to be an imbalanced power lomatic relations with a major gas provider to Europe. However, not purely based on immigration related interests but also on dipfions between states. For example, the EU's support to Ukraine is Migration controls also play an important role in diplomatic rela-

on the tracking, detention, and forced removal/deportation of to widen the belt of buffer states, and public money is spent

migrants

psychologically." the experience and the memory can be profoundly damaging is intrinsically unsafe. And when it does not end in physical injury thors, "there is no such thing as 'entirely safe' restraint. Restraint restraint techniques on children in prison. According to the auof Justice in July 2012 still allow for the use of pain-inducing secure children homes, new guidelines adopted by the Ministry environments." inal justice issue" and calls for more "emphasis on therapeutic behaviour should be viewed as a public health rather than a crim-Prison Reform Trust argue that "minor offences and anti-social usually resulted in non-custodial sentences. INQUEST and the that 60% of the children were convicted although the offence fully considered. A 2008 study by the Prison Reform Trust found decision to hold a young adult in custody should be more careyoung adults, that under-18s should not be detained and the idence, based on the terrible reality of deaths of children and This report is a plea for common sense. It provides further ev-

fatally-flawed  $Link\ to\ the\ report:\ \textit{http://inquest.gn.apc.org/website/publications/}$

2012, pp. 194 (ISBN 978-2-7071-7433-8) migration controls?] Claire Rodier. La Découverte, October gratoires? [Xenophobia business — What is the point of Xénophobie Business — A quoi servent les contrôles mi-

Reviewed by Marie Martin

ent geopolitical, ideological and economic interests. migration controls also involve a complex logic of inter-dependgrants from established routes. However, as this work reveals, in reality migration controls are more efficient at diverting mipoint of migration controls is to stop irregular migrants, although (in French) may seem easy to answer. One may assume that the The question asked by Claire Rodier in the title of her latest book terrorists. aged by hyperbolic government narratives against "illegals" and and 2009 – from 10 to 12% - is likely to be maintained, encour-The impressive growth of this expanding market between 2002 that in 2009 security firms made a global profit of €450 billion. from a military to a civil role after the Cold War. The author states security companies, their influence on politicians, and their shift UK, Rodier dedicates an entire chapter to the rise of private adoption of the SB 1070 law in Arizona, for instance – and the able business. Using concrete examples based in the USA – the Tracking, detaining and removing migrants has become a profit-policy worth more than a few votes in times of economic crisis. "security" to thousands of detainees. Rodier suggests that it is a is a source of employment for those who provide services and supposedly "charitable" organisations, depriving people of liberty the management of detention centres is a source of profit for been totally or partly privatised, or countries like Italy where where the management of detention centres and prisons has Whether in Anglo-Saxon (specifically the UK and USA) countries ability to anticipate and plan for future adaptation needs." it comes with high uncertainty and new risks that threaten our

Marmer_world_must_be_avoided.pdf sites/default/files/Turn_Down_the_heat_Why_a_d_degree_centrigrade_ Available as a download at: http://climatechange.worldbank.org/

Immigration and asylum

1-66432-976-3). Human Rights Watch, January 2013, pp. 51, (ISBN: Children and Adult Asylum Seekers from Italy to Greece, Turned Away: Summary Returns of Unaccompanied Migrant protection seekers back to Greece (July 2012). in a recent publication, Treated like human cargo - Italy pushes tion denounced by Pro Asyl and the Greek Council for Refugees under human rights law. This report further documents a situaanoilegildo lanoitan bna lanoitanietni sti to noileloiv s'ylatl bna returned, allegations of detention of migrants on-board ship any statistical record of the number of people intercepted and inter alia, very limited access for NGOs to ports, the absence of tection – particularly asylum-seekers evidence abounds to show, and support unaccompanied children and adults in need of proobligations to examine each individual's situation, to identify Union and the European Court of Human Rights. Despite Italy's and inappropriate by both the Court of Justice of the European immigration reception conditions were found to be substandard who are returned to a country where the asylum system and vulnerability of asylum-seekers and unaccompanied children migrants are facing there. Human Rights Watch emphasises the tematically returned to Greece, despite the critical situation that many of the stowaways arriving in Italian ports are syscollected during interviews with officials, the report concludes in limbo today. Based on evidence from migrants, NGOs and under-age when removed to Greece and most of them are still arrival by sea as stowaways. Thirteen of those interviewed were who had been removed from Italy to Greece shortly after their Human Rights Watch conducted 29 interviews with migrants In November 2011 and between June and September 2012, hq.O_boolqU1o7&LLOylasi\stroqo1\səlif\sluab\sesis\pio.wnf.www.h.qsth The Human Rights Watch report is available as a free download:

Detainees Welfare Group, November 2012, pp. 24. tion in Brook House Immigration Removal Centre, Gatwick 'A Prison in Mind': the mental health implications of deten-adversely affected by their prolonged detention." Based on to investigate its "concerns...that detainees' mental health was vides support to migrants in detention. The organisation wanted Centres – the other being Tinsley House - where the charity pro-Immigration Removal Centre, one of two Immigration Removal a study on the mental health of detainees in Brook House The Gatwick Detainees Welfare Group (GDWG) conducted > behind migration controls, and their efficiency." consequences: this hypocritical discourse, the real motives things in perspective against the background of these dramatic migration controls. According to Rodier, "[i]t is high time to put narratives to maintain the lucrative "xenophobic" business of these deaths are used by governments to distort humanitarian lost at the European Union's border since the early 1990s, but According to the UNITED network, thousands of lives have been

UNITED link: http://www.unitedagainstracism.org/pdfs/listofdeaths.pdf

ceitradillivi

.(0-8-2446956-0-876

ruption policy.

Transparency International UK, 3.10.12, pp. 30, (ISBN: Defence Companies Anti-Corruption Index 2012.

practices; emphasising to employees a zero-tolerance anti-corglobal standards; corporate "leadership" on anti-corruption Further sections of the report examine whether companies meet basic ethics and anti-corruption compliance systems in place." they have good, publicly available evidence of having at least via websites). Only ten of those 129 reach a score that "means issued to relevant staff and information available publicly (e.g. were examined altogether, largely on the basis of questionnaires not provide adequate levels of transparency." 129 companies first major finding that "two thirds of defence companies do report is well-researched, with primary research leading to the to the frustration of the many honest people working in it." The utations for the governments and companies involved, "much "dangerous, divisive and wasteful." This can lead to bad repon corruption in the arms – or "defence" industry – seeing it as groups, such as sales to repressive regimes. Rather, it focuses arms trade that are often so contentious amongst campaign clear that this study is not in itself opposed to aspects of the With a foreword by a Former Secretary General of NATO, it is default/files/documents/Cl-Report-Single-Hires.pdf Available as a download: http://componies.defenceindex.org/sites/

Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research and Climate Turn Down the Heat: Why a 4°C Warmer World Must Be Avoided.

Analytics (The World Bank) 2012, pp. 85.

notes that "a 4°C world is so different from the current one that tropical cyclones and irreversible loss of biodiversity. The report scarcity in many regions; increased frequency of high-intensity regions, especially the tropics; substantially exacerbated water and wet regions wetter; unprecedented heat waves in many to higher malnutrition rates); many dry regions becoming dryer cities; increasing risks for food production (potentially leading various potential scenarios, including the inundation of coastal effects of a 4°C warming of the world. It draws attention to This report, written for the World Bank, warns of the devastating

"if necessary." can understand, arguing that interpreting services can be used access to legal aid, bail etc. - into languages which detainees lengthy detention or of translating information documents – on possibility of asking an independent panel to examine cases of only accepted some of the recommendations. It rejected the addressed at every level." The UKBA replied to the report but conclusion that "the evidence of poor casework needs to be in many cases. These elements led the two inspectors to the port, as it seems that immigration detention could be avoided months, is examined at some length in one section of the reorder if they have been imprisoned for a minimum of twelve prisoners, who are automatically issued with a deportation by their legal representative. The situation of foreign national are unaware of their rights or were not provided quality advice request remain very limited, mostly because many detainees judicial review of the detention order, and the lodging of bail of distress and suffering. Access to information, legal advice, of some detainees, or did not consider detainees' expression uploads/2012/12/Immigration-detention-casework-2012-FINAL.pdf Link: http://icinspector.independent.gov.uk/wp-content/

Children and Young People. Children's Society, January 2013, Report of the Parliamentary Inquiry into Asylum Support for

ing many [children and families seeking protection] destitute." that "systemic failures from successive governments are leav-Section 95. In the foreword to the report, Teather concludes and are entitled to far less support than asylum-seekers under who cannot dispose of their allowance in cash (Azure card), at risk of exploitation, especially those under Section 4 support of their children. Destitution puts these families and children standards, and families unable to provide for the essential needs children living in dire poverty, unsecure and unsanitary living years in many cases. The report's conclusions are alarming: claim to be temporary support schemes can in reality last for of the Immigration and Asylum law. What the authorities who cannot be removed from the UK – supported under Section Asylum law – and families whose asylum claim was rejected but asylum – supported under Section 95 of the Immigration and The report examined the living conditions of families seeking of access to health care, children's rights, and refugee rights. mittees and civil society organisations involved in the defence lum-seeking families, local authorities, child protection comorganisations were reviewed, including contributions from asysubmissions and oral evidence from over 200 individuals and leather MP and supported by the Children's Society. Written in October 2012, led by former children's minister Sarah Asylum Support for Children and Young People was launched this perspective until a cross-party parliamentary inquiry into mal review of the asylum support system was undertaken from mote the welfare of children in the immigration system. No for-In 2009, the Home Secretary was given the responsibility to pro-

> HRCPsych. Medical Lead on Asylum Mental health Cornelius Katona MD a measure of our own humanity," according to the Royal College reminder that the way we treat the most vulnerable among us is the mental health of detainees, GDWG has provided a "timely the importance of in-depth research on how detention affects The report provides a set of recommendations. By stressing arguing that their detention was at the root of detainees' distress. their situation and some blamed the immigration system itself, that improving detention conditions would not help improve to healthcare was unsatisfactory. However, many considered that detention had affected them negatively and that access who suffered from mental illness prior to detention, confirmed physical and psychological symptoms. Interviewees, some of a useful insight into the ill-being of detainees, identified through of detention was 15 months) and 11 visitors, the report provides interviews with nine long-term detainees (whose average length

1bq.bniMədInInozi14  $\label{eq:link-to-report: http://www.gdwg.org.uk/downloads/GDWG-} Link to report: http://www.gdwg.org.uk/downloads/GDWG-$ pp. 52 (ISBN: 978-1-84099-578-7). Chief Inspector of Borders and Immigration, December 2012, Immigration. HM Inspectorate of Prisons and the Independent Prisons and the Independent Chief Inspector of Borders and Casework: a joint thematic review by HM Inspectorate of noisnassano noisorgimml fo scanna land seansion Detention which either ignored diagnoses establishing the vulnerability lems – reflected a concerning lack of professionalism by UKBA the interviewees, half of them describing mental health probof torture or trafficking, or people with health issues – 67% of The absence of support for vulnerable detainees such as victims detention period by the Bail Guidance for Immigration Judges. period, with six months detention being regarded as a long detainees can be deported or removed within a reasonable on the length of detention in the UK, it should only occur when nearly five years in detention. Although there is no defined limit tion. The longest detainee amongst interviewees had spent 2012, 42 detainees had spent more than two years in detendetention was not reviewed by the correct authority. As of March propriate reviews of detention raised concern: in 59% of cases of detention orders and the lack of regular, coherent and ap-Sussex. In particular, the absence of automatic judicial review Pre-Departure Accommodation for families in Pease Pottage, of trafficking and children - the report covers cases at Cedars' under immigration law, including victims of torture, victims tainees' files. As of March 2012, 3,034 detainees were held February and September 2011, and the analysis of some dedraws on 81 interviews with detainees conducted between gression and the reasons for prolonged detention. The report to detain, the regular review of the detention order, case pro-It warns of serious shortcomings with respect to the decision tion detainees' cases in detention centres, prisons and ports. The joint report examines how UKBA is dealing with immigraexisting legal guidance on specific offences." can be applied to every case. It sits side-by-side with a wealth of

Available at: www.cps.gov.uk

Military

International, 2012, pp. 162 (ISBN 978-0-9541624-3-6). the involvement of children in armed conflict. Child Soldiers versary year of entry into force of the Optional Protocol on of child soldiers: report published to mark the tenth anni-Louder than words – an agenda for action to end state use use of child soldiers. programs to be used to ensure the prevention of recruitment and groups," and also notes the potential for security sector reform unlawful recruitment and use by state armed forces or allied assistance to states where children are subject to or at risk of which explicitly prohibits transfers of arms and other military applied and with what effect." The report calls for "legislation it is not always possible "to assess where [the laws] have been country's record on recruitment and use of children," although acted laws to condition arms exports specifically on a recipient three states – Belgium, Switzerland and the USA – "have enuse by recipient states in their decision-making processes." Only states do not consider the record on child soldier recruitment and it comes to bilateral arms transfer, with few exceptions exporting between the proliferation of small arms and child soldiers, when frequently repeated statements of concern about the relationship ports to countries in which child soldiers may be used. "Despite tion of the responsibility of arms-exporting states to prohibit excountries including Eritrea, Liberia and Yemen; and an examinatrends in the use of child soldiers and case studies covering end the recruitment and use of children by armed forces; global This report looks at the legal framework that obliges states to zgc=pi¿dyd Available at: http://www.child-soldiers.org/global_report_reader.

Watch 2012, pp. 58, (ISBN: 1-56432-952-6). Death of a Dictator: bloody vengeance in Sirte. Human Rights an obligation to investigate war crimes and other violations of is a war crime, and Libyan civilian and military authorities have there. Under the laws of war, the killing of captured combatants wounded son Mutassim from Sirte to Misrata and killed him The evidence indicates that opposition militias took Gaddafi's 66 captured members of the convoy at the nearby Mahari Hotel. subjected them to brutal beatings. They then executed at least the Gaddafi convoy and, after bringing them under their control, that Misrata-based militias captured and disarmed members of the circumstances in which he was killed. "It presents evidence This report details the final hours of Muammar Gaddafi's life and reports/2012/10/16/death-dictator-U Available as a free download at: http://www.hrw.org/ ".wel natianitarian law."

> still pending after six months and that decent living standards that adult asylum-seekers be permitted to work if their case is support should not fall below 70% of income support levels; replaced by "a single cash-based support system"; that asylum recommend, inter alia, that Section 4 support be abolished and the UK is "dangerously flawed." Teather and the panel strongly hostile environment" to deter asylum-seekers from coming to and war." According to the report, the practice of "creating a "proud record of giving protection to those fleeing persecution basic human dignity" are in blatant contradiction with the UK's This, combined with "racial abuse" and "abject disregard for tcs/asylum_support_inquiry_report_final.pdf Link to report: http://www.childrenssaciety.org.uk/sites/default/filles/parliamentary-inquiry-asylum-support-children-andorg.uk/what-we-do/policy-and-lobbying/parliamentary-work/ Link to written evidence: http://www.childrenssaciety.

are guaranteed for all.

December 2012, pp. 48. and Algeria. Andrew Galea Debono, Jesuit Refugee Service, Lives in Transition: experiences of migrants living in Morocco for international protection. procedure or effective identification of persons who may qualify wider society; raids, detention and deportations; and lack of legal access to healthcare and education; racism in the police and in Algeria and Morocco. This includes information on limited refugees, asylum-seekers and undocumented migrants living - it does a good job of detailing the hardships experienced by ment on the situation of migrants and refugees within Europe respect for human rights" is mentioned without any critical comanalysis in the report is limited – at one point "Europe and its particularly in the Spanish enclave of Ceuta. While the political controls imposed by the EU and its member states' governments, become "stuck" in their attempts to get to Europe due to the haran Africa living in Algeria and Morocco, where many have This report examines the experiences of migrants from sub-Sa-

LivesInTransitionJRSEUR10Dec2012.pdf Available as a download at: http://www.jrseurope.org/publications/

MD7

January 2013, pp. 24. The Code for Crown Prosecutions. Crown Prosecution Service

simpler, stripped back statement of overarching principles that charging decisions are made, this new version of the Code is a fraud and organised crime. Given this variety of cases on which fraud, sexual offences, corruption, murder and the most complex of cases that it prosecutes, which includes motoring, benefit pect. The Code says: "The CPS has recently widened the range prosecutors and police in deciding whether or not to charge a susthe seventh edition of The Code, which provides guidance to The Director of Public Prosecutions, Keir Starmer, has published ity, delinedacy and civil interties of and the gathering and use of intelligence." In relation to freedom of association in the context of the fight against terrorism, the report is critical of the use of proscription against organisations (from Tamil, Kurdish or Baloch communities) when there is no proof of their involvement in terrorist activities. The author also alludes to the difficulties faced by Muslim charities from interference by banks. Two trade unions issues are referred to: undue restrictions on solidarity actions ("secondary picketing") which should be repealed and the existence of the Consulting which should be repealed and the existence of the Consulting members without any sanctions being taken against those who benefitted from the practice.

Avsilable as a download at: http://www.ahchr.org/en/NewsEvents/ Pages/DisplayNews.aspx?News!D=12946&LangID=E Innocence Network UK (INUK) Symposium on the Reform of the Criminal Cases Review Commission (CCRC): Report, Michael Naughton and Gabe Tan and Dossier of Cases. Innocence Network UK 2012 pp. 96 & pp. 20.

The first volume is a report from INUK's symposium which highlighted 45 cases of alleged victims of wrongful conviction as part of a campaign for urgent reform of the Criminal Cases Review Commission (CCRC). The event hosted talks from among others - Susan May and Eddie Gilfoyle, who are widely believed to be innocent of the murders they were convicted of, and Paddy Hill of the Birmingham Six who was fitted-up with others by the police for an IRA bombing and served 16 years papers presented at the event as well as two papers that were submitted afterwards. The dossier volume details 44 cases of submitted afterwards. The dossier volume details 46 cases of surferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases a referral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases areferral back to the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases are event and the Court of Appeal by the Criminal Cases are event are convictions.

The two volumes are available as a free download: http://www.innocencenetwork.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2012/05/1MUK-Dossier-of-Cases.pdf and http://www.innocencenetwork.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/01/CCRC-Symposium-Report.pdf

Your Rights and Mobile Fingerprinting. Network for Police Monitoring, 28.1.13.

In late January the Metropolitan Police became the twenty-fifth police force in the UK to begin using mobile fingerprint scanners, which allow officers in the street to check prints against the Police National Computer database. Police using the scanners can take prints in the street, without placing the individual under arrest, if they "reasonably suspect" they have committed as crime. The Network for Police Monitoring says the mobile scanners "could pose a serious threat to civil rights" and have published this guide which is available on their website: http://published this guide which is available on their website: http://

Mali: first assessment of the human rights situation after three week conflict. Amnesty International, 1.2.13, (AFR 37/003/2013) pp. 14.

This Amnesty briefing, based on research carried out in the towns of Ségou, Sévaré and Niono, reports that at least five at risk from all sides in the conflict. It reports that at least five civilians, including three young children, were killed in an air attack launched by the joint French and Malian counter offensive to take over the town of Konna and on credible reports that civilians have been extrajudicially executed by the Malian military since January.

Amnesty has also collected testimonies about human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law by armed Islamist groups including unlawful killings and the use of child soldiers.

 $\label{thm:http://www.amnesty.org/en/library/info/kFR3//003/2013/en} Aree download at: http://www.amnesty.org/en/library/info/kFR3//003/2013/en$

Policing

Statement by the United Nations Special Rapporteur on the rights to freedom of peaceful assembly and of association at the conclusion of his visit to the United Kingdom. Maina Kisi. UN Special Rapporteur on the rights to freedom of peaceful assembly and of association, Press release 23.1.13.

"problematic concept of 'domestic extremism' to protest groups, and Scotland concern is expressed at the application of the disproportionate nature." In England, Wales, Northern Ireland to freedom of peaceful assembly due to its indiscriminate and containment) which is "detrimental to the exercise of the right expresses concern at the police practice of "kettling" (mass relation to mobilisations against a EDL demonstration) and also criticises the imposition of a blanket ban on marches (in government, and paving the way for reparations." The report cially women, who were deliberately deceived by their own related cases, "with a view to giving voice to victims, espetor a judge-led public inquiry into the Kennedy operation and Act, and more generally under international law." Kiai calls violation of basic rights protected under the Human Rights has caused, are unacceptable in a democracy. It is a clear of this infiltration, and the resultant trauma and suspicion it filtrated were not engaged in criminal activities: "The duration Kennedy/Stone, to be "shocking" as the groups that were innon-violent" and finds their use, such as in the case of Mark of "embedded undercover police officers in groups that are England and Wales Kiai expresses deep concern at the use commissions and independent monitoring institutions. In ior officials, representatives of the legislature, human rights London, Belfast and Edinburgh and his meetings with senport which will be presented in June, covers January's visit to The Rapporteur's press release, which prefigures the full re-

and-research-publications/remand-thematic.pdf downloads/publications/inspectorate-reports/hmipris/thematic-reports-Available as a free download at: http://www.justice.gov.uk/

Racism and fascism

Relations, February 2013, pp. 7. Racial Violence: facing reality. Jon Burnett. Institute of Race of six recommendations. changed." To this end, Burnett concludes by making a series and voluntary bodies "need to understand how racism has in the first place." This means that agencies, institutions safety policy that "tries to prevent such attacks taking place and global conditions" to advocate a return to a community terms of an interplay between local realities, national policies ror.' Therefore, the report contextualises racist violence "in backdrop of hostility generated by the so-called 'war on tersettled communities have remained under attack against a alised through processes such as dispersal, while older more students - have been targeted after finding themselves marginmigrants - asylum seekers, migrant workers and international that previously had no such tradition. On the one hand "new" centres where it thrived but has imperceptibly shifted to areas is alive and kicking and no longer confined to the major urban to history. Burnett's research demonstrates that violent racism post-MacPherson reform narrative that saw racism relegated cities to smaller cities and towns across the UK in the face of a IRR, examines the spread of racist violence from the inner This report, based on extensive research carried out by the racial-violence-facing-reality/ Available as a download at: http://www.irr.org.uk/publications/issues/

during 2012. Cairde na hÉireann, February 2013, pp. 13. against Irish community parades/marches in Liverpool Under Pressure: A report into far-right and loyalist attacks oration of the International Brigades that fought in the Spanish march against racism and fascism), and October (in commemrepublican volunteer Sean Phelan in 1921), July (a trade union nity." Marches in February (in commemoration of the death of and individual members of from the Loyalist/Orange commuparades/marches were "directly challenged by far-right groups once again reared its head in 2012 when three Irish community opposition, which died down between 1996 and 2011 and then activity in 1994 was accompanied by loyalist and right-wing Irish famine in the 1840s. A resurgence in republican political since Irish people settled in large numbers in Liverpool after the cultural resistance" making up part of the community's history city for over 200 years", with "radical political activism and clear that it has been "an integral part of the make-up of the It notes the history of the Irish community in Liverpool, making Irish republican parades and marches in Liverpool during 2012. This report looks at attacks by far-right and loyalist groups on

Society, Volume 15 no. 1, 2012, pp. 23-42. bodies'. Michael McCahill and Rachel L. Finn, Punishment & The surveillance of 'prolific' offenders: beyond 'docile

methods of control. examines the different ways in which they seek to resist these home visits) to which people on probation are subjected, and databases, observation, police and probation service interviews, monitoring and surveillance (electronic tagging, surveillance, against them." The authors examine the different methods of contest power relations in situations that are very much skewed the surveilled as 'docile bodies', rather than social actors who can tive to much of the existing literature which continues to portray draws on the work of Pierre Bourdieu to try and "provide a correc-England on a variety of different probation regimes, the article working class residents of deprived council estates in northern Based on a series of interviews with a group of mainly white,

/ February 2013), pp. 4. for England and Wales, Bulletin Nos. 1 and 2 (September 2012 Learning lessons bulletin. Prisons and Probation Ombudsman the use of restraints for seriously ill and dying prisoners. learnt from deaths in approved premises and Bulletin 2 covers approved premises. Bulletin I examines the lessons that can be vestigations into complaints and fatal incidents in prisons and These bulletins provide themed analysis of findings and in-

Available as a download: http://www.ppo.gov.uk/

Ombudsman, March 2012, pp. 8. Investigation of Fatal Incidents. The Prisons and Probation

Probation Ombudsman following a death and provides guidance in the custody of the courts. It explains the role of the Prisons and ing centre, or while a resident of probation approved premises or died while in a prison, immigration removal centre, secure trainis designed for family members and friends of someone who has This pamphlet, published by the Prison's Ombudsman's office, thq.loni1 http://www.ppo.gov.uk/docs/PPO_Family_Liaison_Booklet_2012_Web_ on the investigation process.

Prisons (August) 2012, pp. 126 (ISBN: 978-1-84099-548-0). Remand prisoners: a thematic review. HM Inspectorate of prisoners, leading to an increased risk of suicide and self-harm. a poorer regime and are offered less support than sentenced grounds are over-represented. Remand prisoners suffer from those from black and minority ethnic and foreign national backat any one time (between 12-13,000 prisoners). Women and tenced by a court, constitute about 15% of the prison population Remand prisoners, those who have not been convicted or sen-

Security and intelligence

978-1-873285-48-0). Administration of Justice November 2012, pp. 106 (ISBN national security' primacy to MIS. Committee on the accountability gap: five years on from the transfer of The Policing You Don't See. Covert policing and the frameworks for covert policing. security' policing to MI5 against the human rights and Patten arrangements following the transfer of primacy over 'national St Andrews safeguards. This final chapter also benchmarks with a critique of the application and impact in practice of the official reports and other sources (Chapter 3) and concludes Ireland (Chapter 2); the role of MI5 as far as it is known from dence of past human rights abuses in covert policing in Northern ing the PSNI to a subordinate role. The report examines: eviprimacy to MIS over 'national security' policing, thereby relegatrole of MIS in covert policing in Northern Ireland and transferred ments." The policy formalised the previously largely undeclared covert policing...outside the post-Patten accountability arrangepeace settlement "which shifted the most sensitive areas of parency in relation to police reform under the Northern Ireland This CAJ report discusses issues of accountability and trans-

Available on the CAJ website: www.caj.org.uk

pp. 216 (ISBN: 978-1-936133-75-8). rendition, Amrit Singh. Open Society Foundations, 2013, Globalizing Torture: CIA secret detention and extraordinary

colluded in the torture programme are apparently beyond the some of the victims but the officials and intelligence agents who Sweden, Australia, and the UK have issued compensation to their illegal actions. Regarding the CIA's collaborators, Canada, treatment." Not a single US official has been held accountable for support in assisting the CIA in delivering suspects for "special their allies (Canada and Australia) who gave active and logistical Poland, Belgium, Germany, Finland, Sweden and Denmark) and collusion by European countries (such as the United Kingdom, and other dictatorships. Globalising Torture also documents Algeria, Albania, Somalia, Libya, Yemen, Uzbekistan, Zimbabwe governments such as Egypt, Syria, Afghanistan, Saudi-Arabia, conducted without the complicity and cooperation of foreign tion, but also observes that the programme could not have been human rights violations have enjoyed impunity from prosecuconcern" that the US officials responsible for authorising these technique") programme. The report notes with "significant victims of the CIA's illegal torture ("enhanced interrogation rendition operations. It presents information on 136 known ted by the CIA as part of its secret detention and extraordinary This important report investigates human rights abuses commit-reach of the law.

labour and trade union movement develop a shared analysis of by the far-right and loyalists...by the local media," and that the issue," that there be "proper reporting and analysis of attacks including that the police "recognise anti-Irish racism as a real at marchers. The report ends with a series of recommendations, loyalist organisations who have directed racist and other abuse Civil War) met opposition from a variety of racist, nationalist and pressure-doc-feb-2013.pdf Available at: http://cairdeliverpool.files.wordpress.com/2013/01/under-

far-right activity in Liverpool.

.54.qq,E10S , I (£102)IAO , escism and Intolerance, CRI(2013)1, EVRI report on Ireland (fourth monitoring cycle). European registration of non-national minors under 16. a long-term residence status and to introduce procedures for plications for asylum and subsidiary protection, to introduce Protection Bill to put in place a procedure for dealing with aphousing and the adoption and drafting of the Residence and the National Traveller/Roma Integration Strategy pertaining to language; the involvement of local authorities in implementing on the grounds of ethnic origin, colour, citizenship, religion and tablishment of an independent body to monitor discrimination Garda Siochána, and enacting legislation to counter it; the esand 2004 in relation to allegations of racial profiling by the the monitoring of the application of the Immigration Acts 2003 "persistent concerns" in its recommendations. These include: ECRI welcomed positive developments, but also highlighted by-country/Ireland/IRL-CbC-IV-2013-001-ENG.pdf Available online at: http://www.coe.int/t/dghl/monitoring/ecri/Country-

January 2013, pp. 5-8. organisations active in Britain, Cato. Searchlight No. 450, Marshall and Ultra-right conservative and quasi-patriotic Shifting sands, Sonia Gable, The fringe of the fringe, Lee

English.com and the Workers of England Union. Traditional Britain Group, United British Alliance, We Are the St George's Committee, The Steadfast Trust, Swinton Circle, Quarterly Review, Shieldwall - National Welfare Association, Circle, March for England, National Culturists, Patriotic Forum, Party, English Green, English Shieldwall, London Swinton Conservative Monday Club, England is Ours, England Democrats piece considers Bloomfield Books, British Patriots Society, and Historical Review Press. The "Ultra-right conservative" The Casuals, British People's Party, Redwatch, Stormfront Force, Blood and Honour, League of St. George, The Infidels, the British Movement, Combined Ex-Forces, Racial Volunteer British Democratic Party. The "fringe" consists of entries on Britain First, National Front, English Defence League and the Sands" covers the British National Party, British Freedom Party, These articles review the state of the far-right in Britain. "Shifting

© Statewatch 2013: Statewatch Journal is published quarterly. Statewatch is precluded from expressing a corporate view: the views expressed are those of the contributors. For more information about Statewatch see www.statewatch.org.

185N: 0961-7280

editors: Tony Bunyan, Ben Hayes

deputy editors: Trevor Hemmings, Max Rowlands contributions: if you are interested in contributing to future issues of Statewatch Journal or would like to submit books for review please email office@statewatch.org or write to us at PO Box 1516, London N16 OEW, UK.

hard copy subscriptions available: http://www.statewatch.org/ordering/order.html

printing: Russell Press, Russell House, Bulwell Lane, Basford, Nottingham NG6 OBT

Friends of Statewatch

Support our work by making a one-off or regular monthly donation.

See: http://www.statewatch.org/fosw.html

Free access to Statewatch European Monitoring and Documentation Centre (SEMDOC): http://www.statewatch.org/semdoc

and Statewatch database: http://dotobose.stotewotch.org/seorch.osp

Conference speeches: Statewatching Europe Civil Liberties, the State and the EU marking Statewatch's 20th anniversary.

http://www.statewatch.org/conference/videos/index.html

3 May 2013

A letter to subscribers - changes to the Statewatch Journal

The Statewatch Journal was launched in 1991 and is now in its 23rd year of publication. It includes articles, reviews and research sources analysing policies and practices adopted by European national governments and EU institutions and their implications for civil liberties. Contributors include lawyers, academics, journalists, researchers and community activists drawn from 18 countries across Europe.

The format of the Journal has remained almost untouched since its inception, and while happy with the standard of work it produces we feel that the Journal is in need of updating. To this end we've decided to make some changes to its design, content, and accessibility.

Firstly, the Journal and all back issues will now be free to access on the Statewatch website in pdf format. Accessing the most recent Journal previously required a user name and password, but the fact that all other Statewatch work is distributed freely online, coupled with the considerable resources producing the Journal requires, has led us to believe that a subscription based model for online access is no longer feasible.

All subscriptions to the Journal will now be solely to its hard-copy printed version, which will continue to be mailed to subscribers.

Secondly, each Journal will now be thematic with all articles written on the same subject. This Journal, for example, focuses on the nexus between austerity, civil liberties and democracy in Europe. We hope that this will lead to a more cohesive publication and allow us to focus on topics deserving of thorough analysis.

Thirdly, the Journal has been redesigned and is now printed with colour. The new thematic approach means that the length of the Journal will increase with each issue featuring a greater number of articles from contributors. This Journal is 40 pages long up from the standard 24, and in future we expect 32 page Journals to be the norm.

We are very happy with the new-style Journal. We hope that you agree and will continue to support the Statewatch Journal in the future. If you have any queries about your subscription please contact us.

